GALE ISOLATES ISLAND

Roof of new garage, lower left, rests against home of R. D. Ward at 887 Bank after gust

Ferries, Planes Cancel Trips

An unrelentingly vicious windstorm isolated Vancouver Island from the mainland Friday, smashed trees and poles, damaged homes and left at least 30 people stranded at Campbell River.

Power and telephone lines snapped under falling trees and hundreds of people were forced to alter their weekend plans when all ferry and airline services to the Lower Mainland were cancelled.

The winds, with velocity accelerating as the day went on, at times were close to hurricane force. At Victoria, they were gusting up to 69 miles an hour in the evening.

Worse Than Frieda

Monty Aldous, general manager of B.C. Ferries, said the storm had more serious effects on his service than did Typhoon Frieda in 1962. Friday's winds, while they did not reach the same speeds, lasted longer.

"Just about every place has had some problems," said a spokesman for B.C. Hydro, most of whose line crews had not yet had supper at 10 p.m.

The prospect for today: more winds, but probably of less intensity, as the storm moves northwest toward the Queen Charlotte Islands.

The advice for today: If you're travelling, check to make sure the ferries or planes are running. If there are any power lines down in your area, keep the children away from them.

The Mv. Queen of Vancouver, which left Swartz Bay at 6 p.m., was about a mile and a half from the Tsawwassen terminal when it had to turn around and head back to the Island because another ferry was jammed in the slip.

Leasing Tax Hit

VANCOUVER (CP) — A "clarification" of British Columbia's 5 per cent sales tax on equipment rentals will add almost $1,000,000 a year to construction costs, an industry spokesman said Friday.

Bill Ellison, industrial relations manager for the Amalgamated Construction Association of B.C., made the statement while commenting on the change under the Social Services Tax Act.

The change, effective today, means that persons who rent equipment must pay the tax instead of firms which lease it. Originally the firms were required to pay the tax when the rental equipment was originally purchased.

Mr. Ellison said that rental firms usually get three times an item's original value during its lifetime.

The consumer taxation branch in Victoria said in a directive that rent gained from leasing tangible personal property such as boats, machines and other equipment for more than 30 days is subject to the 5 per cent sales tax.

A spokesman for the branch said the new directive is not designed to produce new revenue for the government but rather "to standardize things."

Passengers Seasick

Passenger Bert Dohi, 250 from running, said the vessel crashed and groined in the rough seas. The lavatories were crowded with people suffering seasickness and the floor of the restaurant was littered with broken glass, spilled cutlery and sugar.

The last Air Canada flight to Victoria left Vancouver at 5:35 p.m. Fierce turbulence forced cancellation of remaining evening flights.

The government ferry authority cancelled its sailings from all mainland and Island ports, including the Gulf Islands, shortly after 6 p.m.

A B.C. Ferries spokesman said there were "good" loads but the vessels weren't at capacity because the bad weather, which started about noon, discouraged many people from travelling.

A man was injured when he drove into a downed tree at Campbell River. St. Joseph's Hospital in Victoria treated three people who came to the emergency ward with sand or dust in their eyes.

Almost every community on Vancouver Island reported sporadic power outages, but in some areas the lights were off most of the night.

About 30 high school children and several adults were unable to return to Quadra Island, off Campbell River, when high seas and 75-mile-an-hour winds prevented the ferry Quadra Queen from running.

The students, who come across each day for school, stayed with relatives and friends in Campbell River, while some adults checked in at hotels.

Quadra Island, with a population of about 500, was without power Friday night.

It's Mr. Smith Soon

Army Loses Private Battle

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The U.S. Army surrendered Friday to Pte. Joe Allen Smith, who spent 18 months of his tour of duty at home awaiting orders, and agreed to discharge him next week.

The military announced its capitulation the same moment as Smith's brigade of lawyers marched into federal court seeking a writ of habeas corpus on grounds the private was being held in the army illegally.

Smith, 23, Brownsville, Calif., spent most of his two-year tour at home working as a logger awaiting new transfer orders. When his two years were up, he notified the brass he wanted out.

They put him back in uniform in June. The private, drafted in June, 1965, went on a 30-day leave in December, 1965, expecting to go to southeast Asia. A telegram from the army told him to await new orders.

The orders never came. Smith, tired of fishing and hunting, got a job as a logger earning about $130 a week. His wife drew an army allotment of $35.20 a month.

Smith sought his discharge when his two-year duty had terminated.

'Should Have Been Admiral By Now'

DENVER (UPI) — Fred R. Linsenmaier enlisted in the navy in 1918 and then went home to await his orders to report for duty "on 24 hours notice." He said Friday he has been waiting ever since.

Linsenmaier, now 70, said after he took his oath the recruiter instructed him to go home where he would receive orders.

"They weren't sending anyone to camps then because of the Spanish influenza," Linsenmaier said.

He still was waiting three months later when the armistice came so he thought he had better check. Linsenmaier, who now operates a Denver bakery supply business, said he went back and was told he had enlisted for six years.

He waited 40 more years until 1958 when he decided it was time to check again. Linsenmaier said he wrote the navy and told them he thought he "should re-enlist or get a discharge."

The navy replied, asking him what ship he had been on and his service number. Linsenmaier, who had never been on a ship or received a service number, decided to forget the whole thing.

Linsenmaier, who signed up for $13 a month when he enlisted 49 years ago, said he wasn't worried about the money.

"Actually, the length of time I've been in the navy I should be an admiral," he said. Asked why he enlisted, Linsenmaier replied: "I didn't want to be drafted."

Ottawa Chasing U.S. Ship Work

OTTAWA (CP) — The government is actively pursuing contracts for Canadian shipyards in the United States, Industry Minister Drury assured a West Coast MP Friday.

But he added that the U.S. government shows "some reluctance" to have the ships built in Canada.

Mr. Drury was replying in the Commons to George Chatterton (PC-Esquiama-Saanich), who asked whether the government is considering any measures to relieve a critical situation in West Coast shipyards.

Mr. Drury said a scheme of "transitional arrangements" agreed on two years ago by the federal government and the ship construction industry, is continuing.

Canoeist Saved In Atlantic

MOSCOW (UPI) — A Soviet merchant ship has rescued British adventurer Francis Breton in a canoe in the Atlantic, Ivestia said Friday.

He was picked up floating 8-0-5 near the Canary Islands after 100 days of a solo crossing from Expe 67.

New Ferry Needed

Alaska Run Won't Pause

The Washington-Alaska ferry service will be on a year-round basis as soon as the 49th state can acquire another ferry boat, Governor Walter Hickel told the Colonist by telephone Friday.

"We may have to return the Matanuska to the regular run in the summer," he said, "but as soon as we can find another ferry we intend to operate permanently on a weekly basis, the year round."

Hickel said he is definitely considering Bellingham as a permanent southern terminus for the run from Alaska to Puget sound — in answer to a strong bid made by a Bellingham group.

FERRY SEARCH

The governor also said Alaska representatives would be going to Europe in the near future to look at ferries, with a view to purchasing one to augment the present fleet of three.

The state will start direct ferry service between Ketchikan and Seattle Dec. 14, with a 10:15 a.m. departure from Ketchikan by the Matanuska.

BEARLY BOOKED

George MacClanahan, state commissioner of public works, said the initial sailing from Seattle to Ketchikan is already nearly completely booked.

In other developments, Hickel also disclosed:

● Initial service between Ketchikan and Puget Sound will involve one round trip weekly.

● The state plans to seek federal interstate highway

One-Punch Mosca Wins Again

So Endeth the Fist Lesson

OTTAWA (CP) — Angelo Mosca, 270-pound tackle with Hamilton Tiger-Cats, flattened Ottawa centre Jerry Selinger Friday in a one-punch fight outside the Hamilton dressing room. (See also Page 18)

Selinger, who tips the scales at 235 for the Rough Riders, was waiting in his car as Mosca came out of the dressing room and headed for the practice field a few yards away.

He said something to Mosca — believed to be the result of some head-knocking when the two teams met in the Eastern Football Conference final — and Mosca turned and hit Selinger on the side of the head with a solid right.

Selinger hit the ground and that was the fight.

"He called me a big . . ." said Mosca, "so I flattened him. He was mad about what I did to him in the last game."

Hamilton won the second game of the two-game, total-points EFC final 26-0 and Mosca admitted he elbowed Selinger during the game.

"Well I didn't like what they were doing so Joe Zuger (Hamilton quarterback) so I hit Selinger with an elbow. I think maybe I cut him around the lips for a couple of stitches."

After the fight Friday — one of the biggest surprises on the eve of today's Grey Cup — Mosca delivered a short lecture to Selinger as he lay on the ground.

"I told him he shouldn't

carry a feud off the football field," said Mosca. If he wants to do something, do it on the field. But once the game's over, forget it. I never carry a feud off the field.

"A guy shouldn't carry grudges away from the game. At least if they do, they should keep quiet and settle their scores on the field."

"Even after that Grey Cup game in Vancouver — you know, the Willie Fleming thing — well the Vancouver guys wouldn't shake my hand after the game, and they wouldn't talk to me afterwards."

"That's okay with me — who needs them. But they didn't try to carry on the feud off the field."

Penny Rise Means Disaster

Milk prices are expected to increase a penny a quart on the heels of a similar increase in Vancouver — another increase on the cost of a basic commodity.

To a happy, working family, the increase is an aggravation, but to a family toughing out the days on the edge of abject poverty, it is a disaster.

With Christmas near and most families spending freely,

Victoria's needy are wondering how to stretch a few dollars even further.

Many sympathetic Victorians Friday decided to put their less fortunate neighbors on their Christmas list, and in the most generous outpouring so far this year put more than $900 into the Colonist 500 Fund.

ahead of 1965, and $850 ahead of 1966.

In both of those years, cheques were finally made out to the 500 names on the Colonist's Christmas list for $30. So far, the fund, if split up now would have enough in it to give each family $6.90.

Many clubs and organizations are getting plans underway to help swell the fund.

The Victoria Gun Club will stage its Colonist 500 Fund turkey shoot on its Albert Head range off Metchosin Road, Dec. 16 and 17.

A club official said Friday the shoot resulted in a $300 boost to last year's fund, but he hopes to do even better this year.

Donations may be mailed or brought in to The Daily Colonist, 2631 Douglas, or to Avis Rent-A-Car, 800 Douglas. Latest donations are listed on Page 2.

Hot Ayr Scorches Burns Reviews

HOT AYE: Publisher Gray Campbell sent copies of press notices on Yvonne Stevenson's book Burns and his Bonnie Jean around the world to help promote the book. He got a few sharp replies.

The curator of the Tam o' Shanter Museum and past-president of the Ayr Burns Club, one John Gray, was quite unhappy.

Mr. Gray described the local notices saying "they are so contemptible in their reference to Burns as to be unworthy of a reply. I thought my own story on Miss Stevenson's book was quite objective. It is a good book and Miss Stevenson, as a direct descendant of Bonnie Jean Armour, has every right to her view. I hope more folks read her book."

Gray Campbell, the Sidney publisher, is also well along with negotiations to have his other recent production, Mouth of the Wolf, translated into Japanese.

The firm of Hayakawa Sjobo have asked for the rights to the John Windsor story about British Secret Service activity in Italy.

It is amusing to see that as a footnote to the Burns controversy the poet's friend, Maria Riddel, is quoted: "I believe it is as certainly understood that genuine words never free of irregularities... but be it remembered, the frailties that cast their shade over the splendour of superior merit are more conspicuously glaring than where they are the attendance of mere mediocrity. It is only on the gem we are disturbed to see the dust; the pebble may be soiled and we do not regard it."

So that's that from heated Ayr.

DYNAMIC DUO: There are dozens of just about everything — the press corps, universities, statesmen, politicians — but if there is ever a move about to nominate a dean of British Columbia entertainers then the committee would have to give the nod not to one individual but to a team.

Barney Potts and his wife Thora Anders would win hands down.

For the first time in their joint careers, they will play a two-week end here when they open Monday at the Red Lion. Time elides away but it was 10 years ago that I last saw Barney and Thora do a show. It was at the old Pacific Athletic Club in Vancouver.

I had chosen to take out a gal from my office who was to be wed and who joined my wife at a ringside table for the show when playing ceased. Barney asked me to stand up and be introduced. In his deadpan way he told the crowd "We need a big hand for this guy who has the nerve to bring his wife and his girlfriend out on a date." A great gag, my wife smiled, but when we got home by, oy, oy.

GREAT DAY: There is more than an outside chance that the Colinist-sponsored production of Handel's Messiah at the Royal Theatre Sunday afternoon will be a sell-out.

The tickets are really moving and it would probably be the most pleasant Christmas present the symphony directors could get. They may even fight for the right to cart out the House Full sign. Let's hope it goes out both nights.

CHANGES: Profile magazine's men on the island, Godfrey Holloway, reports that Vancouver Life has changed hands for a nominal amount. Publisher Don Cromie has sold out to a Mr. Hemming of Seattle, who publishes a magazine titled Alaska Sportsman. The staff of Life are looking for new jobs.

Meanwhile, back at Profile the staff are busy putting out an international magazine for Canadian Pacific Airlines titled Gateway. Mr. Holloway will be out and about promoting his new book, The Empress of Victoria. The hardcover history of the hotel goes on sale soon.

Mobile TB X-Ray Equipment Dependable Within Limits

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: How dependable are these mobile units that come around taking chest x-rays? Can you depend on the x-rays being read right? I am speaking of the units sponsored by the tuberculosis association.—N.R.

Very dependable, within the limits that they undertake to accomplish. The equipment is reliable and so are the people operating it, but all they are attempting to do is screen people for any sign that needs further investigation.

A small-size 70 millimeter film is used for the sake of economy, but it is big enough to show any condition of serious dimensions. When the x-ray shows a normal-appearing chest, that's the end of things. If there is anything suspicious, then your doctor is notified and as a rule will want large-size (16x17 inch) x-rays.

The mobile units do not

attempt to decide whether you do or do not have tuberculosis, lung cancer or any other disease. They merely undertake to tell you (or rather your doctor) that some abnormality appears to exist.

Dear Dr. Molner: If a urinalysis reveals a two-plus protein count and some red blood cells, what does it indicate in a 65-year-old male in apparent general good physical condition?—R.G.

This combination can mean several things. It could be trouble in the kidney itself — some form of nephritis. Irritation anywhere along the urinary tract can produce bleeding and hence red blood cells, and the blood cells alone can produce a positive protein (albumin) test. Irritants could be stones, bladder ulcers, polyps.

The conditions responsible for albumin and red cells in the urine may be so subtle or so early as not to cause you to feel ill.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have had varicose veins. I read in a book about folk medicine that you should bathe them night and morning with apple cider vinegar and drink a glass of water twice a day with two teaspoons of elder vinegar, and in a month the veins should be gone.

I have tried it faithfully and no results. Is this really a cure?—Mrs. E.T.

No, it's not a cure nor is there the faintest scientific reason why it should be.

Danger Remains

THE SUSPICION IS INESCAPABLE that the fire-brand president of the Republic of Cyprus, Archbishop Makarios III, is prepared to risk war between Greece and Turkey in order to achieve his purpose.

Precisely what his aims may be even diplomats close to the scene are still unable to determine. Whether they include union (enosis) with Greece, the elimination of the Turkish Cypriot enclave and the surrender of British bases, or all three, is not clear. He may have other aspirations.

Whatever the case the only capital likely to applaud his intransigence is Moscow for the continuing tensions on the island and the consequent threat of war between the two North Atlantic Treaty Organization member-states, Greece and Turkey, is of obvious advantage to the Kremlin only.

It now transpires that it was the Cypriot president who inspired the attack on the two Turkish Cypriot villages early in November when 25 died.

General Spandidakis, the Greek defence minister and vice-premier, apparently will be the scapegoat in the affair, which precipitated the threat of war, because it was he who gave the order which sent the Greek Cypriot National Guard on that murderous mission.

It is reported he will be dismissed from his post and, presumably, from the junta which rules Greece.

But this action would not remove the stain of responsibility on the archbishop's robes.

The hard-won terms of settlement between Greece and Turkey, which included agreement for withdrawal of Greek forces far in excess of the numbers stipulated in the 1960 independence treaty, may be rendered inoperative by Archbishop Makarios' reluctance to accept the departure of these troops.

It is possible that the Greek government will order the return of its forces in spite of the president's opposition. Under pressure from the United Nations such a move is by no means improbable since their presence is considered a breach of treaty and the main contributing factor to Turkish dissatisfaction.

Power for Peace

IT WAS 25 years ago today that atomic power was born, when in wartime secrecy, in a squash court of the University of Chicago's football stadium, a team of scientists succeeded in creating a sustained chain nuclear reaction.

The race then was to develop atomic fission as an instrument of war: for Germany was known to be on the same track. The race was won by United States, British and Canadian scientists, and the horror of the product needs no telling.

But with peace came also the development of peaceful uses of this new-found source of energy. Increasingly it is providing electricity; it promises before long to provide de-salted sea water in large quantities to bring agricultural plenty to arid lands; it may yet, as an explosive, dig great canals.

And even in its martial form, its terror multiplied over and over since the war, it has served as its own guarantor against its use. The world's two most powerful nations stand able to demolish each other as continuing societies, no matter which were to strike the first blow. To use the bomb is to commit national suicide, as the newer members of the "nuclear club" must also know.

There is reason for good hope, then, that at Hiroshima and Nagasaki the world saw the last and only employment of nuclear energy to destroy; that in this form it will continue, for that matter, to dissuade the nations from allowing any conflict to grow to the proportions that would seriously invite its use, and that it will yet, by this influence, lead to the abolition of arms and armies everywhere.

The Navy's Potatoes

THE INQUIRIES made of the government in the House of Commons are so numerous and often so complex that it is evident that endless man-hours of research must go into answering them. Sometimes the purpose of the members' probing is apparent. Sometimes it is clearly intended to embarrass the government. But sometimes the questions make one wonder for what earthly reason the askers want the information—and if the work of digging it out is justified.

Take the case of the navy and the potatoes. The question was asked by Mr. David MacDonald, of Prince Edward Island, a province which admittedly has a great interest in potatoes. Mr. MacDonald wanted to know how many bushels of potatoes were purchased for the RCN in the fiscal years 1964-65 and 1965-66, at what cost, and also the number of personnel on strength at the end of each year.

The reply was that in the first year 46,329 bushels of fresh potatoes and 17,243 pounds of instant potatoes were bought for 19,756 sailors at a cost of $105,857 and in the second year, 43,169 bushels of fresh and 15,070 pounds of instant potatoes for 18,439 sailors, for $124,366.

From this answer Mr. MacDonald may have gleaned that the consumption of fresh potatoes fell off in the second year by two-hundredths of a bushel per sailor (if our arithmetic is right). This could of course have resulted either from fewer potatoes being fed to the men or greater efficiency in peeling—less waste. And Mr. MacDonald doesn't know which.

But the puzzle is, whether consumption was up or down, whether the price was up or down, what would the MP intend to do about it?

Hansard Titbits

One Free Opinion

MR. Ron Basford (Vancouver-Burrard): . . . There is one aspect of this subject that has not been dealt with. Mr. Speaker, and that is that if we are going effectively to limit judges from serving as royal commissioners, then we must of course ask where we can find others to do this work . . . The first group of people that come to mind would be the economists. It is said of economists that if you put three in a room you get four opinions. If we made up a royal commission of economists, the taxpayers would get one opinion for nothing, so I think that would be a desirable saving to the taxpayers.

Washington Calling

Two Polls Show Richard Nixon Leading As Republican Presidential Candidate

By MARQUIS CHILDS

MAKING winter work on next year's presidential election Democratic strategists are now all but taking it for granted that the Republican candidate will be Richard M. Nixon. In their order of preference for an opponent Nixon is No. 2.

No. 1 is Gov. George Romney of Michigan. They rate him easiest to defeat because, as they see it, he has slithered from side to side on so many issues. His compulsive prolixity induces in the end simply boredom.

In both the recent Associated Press poll and the Gallup poll, Nixon topped all other potentials in a survey of Republicans by three to one. The reasons are not hard to find. Week in and week out over the past five years he has done the party's spade work that has won friends among the faithful who will select the nominee at the Miami Beach convention.

In at least 60 congressional districts Nixon has gone in to speak for Republican candidates. Money-raising has been one of his major functions.

Thanks to his alliance with Helen Clay Frick, daughter of the Pittsburgh steel master, Henry Clay Frick, who fought unionization with bold and fearless defiance, he has been able to hand out sizable sums when most needed in original congressional races. The darling both of the pros and the rank and file, to repudiate him would mean an upheaval in the party that now seems particularly as the moderates threaten to fall out again, highly improbable.

But precisely the reasons why he will get the nomination are the same reasons, in the view of the Democratic book makers, that he will be easier to beat than any one of three or four other potential candidates. It is Nixon the operator, the political manipulator, the wheeler-dealer, who will emerge triumphant at Miami Beach. The Republicans will be hard pressed to make the contrast with Lyndon Johnson as wheeler-dealer.

The "can't win" tag will be handed out. No one will be allowed to forget his public explosion after his defeat in the race for governor of California in 1962. That performance, taking himself out of politics with a furious blast at his critics, astonished reporters assembled to hear him make a statement conceding the election.

"You won't hear Dick Nixon to kick around any more," he shouted with a rising crescendo of thinly disguised hate at what he proclaimed his "last press conference."

The Democratic National Committee is said to have a tape of this remarkable performance. Whether it is public property and can be used in the campaign is still a question. The plan, if it can be employed, is to play it over and over with the solemn question, "Would you trust this man with his finger on the button?"

The issue promising to dominate the campaign next fall is the most unpopular war in which this country has ever been involved.

Nixon has taken the hardest of hard lines, attacking the administration for not prosecuting the war in Vietnam more vigorously. For all his agility it is hard to see how he can shift his ground in accord with a rising demand to get out and the growing fear of a greatly enlarged conflict with China and the Soviet Union, increasingly drawn in.

The president has a decided advantage here. As even the most articulate doves privately acknowledge, if he were to declare well in advance of the campaign that most of America's objectives had been achieved and begin at least a token return of American troops, it would be hard to challenge his findings. Judging from most indicators this news would be universally welcomed.

But it must be added that the war as a campaign issue is tricky beyond belief. There is only one precedent in American history for the immediate political involvement of the American people in a prolonged and bitter conflict. That is the Civil War.

Political Suicide?

Rene Levesque No Racist But a Martyr to Principle

By TERRY HAIG

WATCHING Rene Levesque speak his mind these days reminds one of what happened to the late Adlai Stevenson, a politician similar in style and temperament.

Mr. Levesque, like the former U.S. presidential candidate, seems destined to be defeated by the realpolitik and political process of the age.

Like Mr. Stevenson, Mr. Levesque speaks as a visionary avoiding the platform platitudes and the politicking that enable men of lesser calibre to get themselves into positions of power.

Mr. Stevenson was a witty intellectual who became one of the foremost losers in the history of U.S. politics.

A similar future seems in the cards for Mr. Levesque. He continues to speak from belief, with little regard for the political consequences, and as a result he is a man all dressed up with no place to go politically.

The end for Mr. Stevenson came when he accepted a nomination for a job he knew he never could win.

The political climate was not right for his beliefs and he knew he must do and it was political suicide.

Similarly, Mr. Levesque may have ended his public career when he chose to go against the political grain and promote a common market set-up for Canada.

Mr. Levesque must have known the time was not right for the move. But, as he stressed that night in a smoke-filled room over a restaurant: "There comes a time when a man has to stand up and be counted."

Mr. Levesque was quickly railroaded out of the Liberal Party. The Liberals never gave him a chance at their convention to present his case.

In the long run this may hurt Levesque. The former welfare minister is a hero and an institution in his province, stemming from his days as a television personality and his fight for unpopular causes.

A lot of people—regardless of where they stand on separatism—do not like what happened to Rene Levesque and the results will no doubt show in the next provincial election.

But, the fact remains that politically Mr. Levesque is just too hot to handle. The big parties don't want him for obvious reasons. And he has no desire to link up with either of the two separatist parties.

Aside from the fact that their political platforms for Quebec's future are different, Mr. Levesque has a distaste for the doctrine of political parties (Rassemblement pour l'indépendance nationale) chief Pierre Bourgault.

The RN (Rassemblement National) is too far to the right for Mr. Levesque's liking.

Mr. Levesque is too much of an intellectual to accept pat answers to questions and, contrary to what many English may believe, he is anything but a racist.

The ardent separatists are anti-English. Mr. Levesque is pro-French and there's a big difference.

A French-Canadian waitress recently told me how she first met Rene Levesque. The story sums up neatly his personal feelings on the whole issue of biculturalism and bilingualism.

"Mr. Levesque, whom I did not recognize, came in to eat at a restaurant where I was working several years ago," she said.

"When I asked for his order in English, he called me quietly aside and asked me why."

"He said I had a right to ask in French first since I was in Quebec. But he added that if somebody did not speak French then I should just as politely speak in English."

"He wanted was for me to be proud of being French and proud of my heritage and culture."

This is all, emotionally, that Mr. Levesque has ever asked and it's far from a racist attitude.

Mr. Levesque must ponder the fate of Mr. Stevenson as he watches Premier Daniel Johnson, a master of practical politics, slip from side to side with answers that keep him on the fence and in power.

In his later years, Mr. Stevenson gained a measure of respect not usually accorded politicians anywhere.

Mr. Levesque, of course, does not want this any more than Mr. Stevenson did.

Levesque supporters, like those who followed Stevenson, love their leader. Many are devoted to him as a man. But how much steam his handwagon will generate is in doubt. How much financial and general support he will get is up in the air.

Will Mr. Levesque be another Stevenson? His desire to speak with emotional honesty, no matter what the consequences would indicate that this will be his fate.

With the formation of his new party, Quebecers will now get a chance to decide.

Officials Unaware

Cambodia Provides Viet Cong Refuge

By MARK FRANKLAND from Phnom Penh

THE discovery of what is alleged to be a North Vietnamese military camp within Cambodian territory by American news agency reporters has dramatized how difficult it is for Cambodia to keep clear of the whirlpool of the Vietnam war.

The existence of Viet Cong and North Vietnamese "sanctuaries" has long been discussed—unofficially—in Saigon. The American authorities have, however, been why of any public talk about it until late this summer. Then, in September, Admiral U.S. Grant, American commander-in-chief in the Pacific, told the Senate preparedness investigating committee: "We have known for quite a long time that there are various regiments that operate back and forth in South Vietnam, and back into Cambodia when the heat is on them. They use Cambodia as a sanctuary."

In May Major-General Stanley Larson, then commander of American forces in the central area of South Vietnam, had claimed at a press conference that up to 10,000 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops were over the border in Cambodia. But the Pentagon swiftly denied this.

The camp discovered by the Americans, who had taken up an invitation by the Cambodian head of state, Prince Sihanouk, to inspect any border areas they liked, was only a few miles from the South Vietnamese town of Loc Ninh. This is where the communist troops, at the end of October, launched the first big attack of their winter-spring campaign.

People may find it hard to believe that Prince Sihanouk should know nothing of the existence of 10,000 or even 5,000 foreign guerrillas on his territory. But it is not quite as simple as that.

The Cambodian-Vietnamese frontier is some 500 miles long. The Cambodians "defend" it by scattered police and militia outposts, usually placed where a road, track or river crosses the border. The militia, who are nothing more than peasants from villages near the border, are supposed to carry out patrols—perhaps two or three times a day, along their sector of the border.

But at the frontier post of Bosmon, in Svay Rieng province, where you can see the famous Black Virgin mountain rising like a volcano above the Vietnamese town of Tay Ninh, a policeman said that whenever there was a lot of fighting on the other side, the local militia usually took up a defensive position around their village. This is a sensible act of defence by the peasant militiamen for their cottages and families, but obviously it leaves the border open to anyone who might want to escape across it.

In fact, this southern part of the frontier between South Vietnam and Cambodia has long been smugglers' country. They use twin-engine sampans that are faster and shallower than any customs boat that might pursue them. They also use bicycles, and until recently they even used horses. Some of this traffic is just the usual petty contraband of frontier people.

At Baret, the point where the old French Route Nationale 1, linking Phnom Penh and Saigon, crosses the frontier, Vietnamese girls have a little stall selling loot from the American PX store. They stand on the Cambodian side of the two barbed-wire covered fences that close the road, and offer Black and White whisky and Hennessy brandy at two-thirds Phnom Penh prices. They also have American cigarettes and a few weakened by 366 natural caves and numerous man-made tunnels. These carry not only road and rail services, and the drain and sewer network, but the city's ample supplies of contraband as well.

The older quarters and port area are honeycombed with underground passages which have never been fully explored. Many run down to the sea, and one at least was walled up by the Allies during the war to cut the flow of black market supplies from the harbor.

A three-hour autumn gale recently caused a sea of mud to flow downhill through the Posillopo quarter towards Mer-gellina, the famous yacht harbor. In one piazza a hole measuring some 8 by 15 yards opened suddenly in the roadway, and two cars drove into it.

One typical new building scheme, just about to go into operation, includes plans for some 4,000 new apartments over 25 lots on the Posillopo hills. The city authorities must now decide whether such schemes can go ahead; or whether, as the official report recommends, all building work must stop in the dangerous areas until the deficiencies are remedied.

Further to the north, the situation is rather different. Here the terrain on both sides of the frontier is difficult, and very lightly populated. The only way for the Cambodians to check the hills and forests of these border provinces would be to mount regular and large-scale reconnaissance operations, and this they do not do. It is partly a question of equipment. Cambodia has only some half-dozen French Alouette helicopters, and is equally badly equipped with the sort of vehicles that can move about such difficult country. Any attempt to send troops slogging through the jungle would quickly eat up the 34,000 strong Royal Cambodian Army.

Officials in these areas, including some soldiers, show a marked reluctance to make unnecessary journeys, and considering the hazards involved this is not surprising. In Stung Treng province, just below the border with Laos, a Cambodian battalion occupies the village of Siem Pang. The village has won some fame as a cross-over point on the Viet Cong's so-called Sihanouk Trail, whose existence has never been proved; it is supposed to carry supplies from Cambodia into territory held by the Pathet Lao (the communist army in Laos) and from there to the Vietnamese highlands.

Cambodian officials from the provincial capital rarely go to Siem Pang, simply because it is very difficult to get to. You must either take a small boat for 10 hours or move up the Se Kong River, crossing tricky rapids that cannot be navigated at night. Or, in the five months of the dry season, you can drive across 50 kilometres of forest track in a Land Rover.

At Siem Pang a third of the battalion is occupied in helping government-subsidized settlers to colonize this very wild area. The forests to the east of the river are dangerously malarial and clearly no one at Siem Pang is going to make a habit of walking through them.

If Prince Sihanouk has no good way of finding out what is happening along his borders, the Americans certainly do. It can have been only from U.S. military intelligence that the American correspondents indirectly learned of the camp's location. But the information is mostly of only academic interest to the U.S. commanders as long as they are not allowed to carry the war into Cambodian territory.

Naples in Danger Of Vast Collapse

By GEORGE BLACK from Rome

AN alarming official report on Naples, which reveals that the city is built above ground peppered with huge natural caves and warns of disaster ahead if uncontrolled building continues, is now being studied by the Italian government. The report, drawn up by a team of civil engineers and speleologists, took two years to complete.

That Naples is falling down has been long apparent to its inhabitants. They joke uneasily about "laundry day," when the whole town will slide slowly from its hills into the Mediterranean. There have been frightening cases in which entire blocks have collapsed and cars have been swallowed by chasms that appear, without warning, in the road. But little action is being taken to rescue this exuberant, hideously noisy, haggardly beautiful city of more than a million souls.

Naples is built upon an amphitheatre of hills above the celebrated bay. The post-war building boom has covered the heights with several million tons of reinforced concrete, which rest on a thin crust of tufa, a cellular volcanic rock, above a subsoil of volcanic ash. The crust itself, the report says, is weakened by 366 natural caves and numerous man-made tunnels. These carry not only road and rail services, and the drain and sewer network, but the city's ample supplies of contraband as well.

The older quarters and port area are honeycombed with underground passages which have never been fully explored. Many run down to the sea, and one at least was walled up by the Allies during the war to cut the flow of black market supplies from the harbor.

A three-hour autumn gale recently caused a sea of mud to flow downhill through the Posillopo quarter towards Mer-gellina, the famous yacht harbor. In one piazza a hole measuring some 8 by 15 yards opened suddenly in the roadway, and two cars drove into it.

One typical new building scheme, just about to go into operation, includes plans for some 4,000 new apartments over 25 lots on the Posillopo hills. The city authorities must now decide whether such schemes can go ahead; or whether, as the official report recommends, all building work must stop in the dangerous areas until the deficiencies are remedied.

Brave Trio Honored In Shooting Sequel

Two RCMP officers and a civilian guard have been commended for their bravery during a shooting at the Sidney RCMP office Oct. 6, 1966.

Sgt. Harry Chambers and Constable Robert Bouck have been awarded the Commissioner's Commendation, and a civilian guard William McAuley the commanding officer's commendation.

OTHER AWARDS

They will receive their commendations at the Law Courts building at 8 p.m. today when other awards will be made to RCMP members.

Sgt. Chambers won his commendation for making the arrest of an armed man inside the detachment office and Constable Bouck for assisting in the arrest after being fired on.

'GOOD JUDGMENT'

Mr. McAuley was wounded by the gunman and, in the words of the commendation, "continued to display good judgment and excellent control, thereby preventing further injury to himself or to the prisoners in his care."

Mr. McAuley has been guard at the detachment for three years.

FOUR MEDALS

Staff-sgt. Edward Forrest of the Campbell River detachment will also receive the commissioner's commendation. He arrested a man at Campbell River Feb. 9 after the person had committed a breaking and entering and fired at RCMP Constable R. L. Nicholas.

Four centennial medals will be awarded to RCMP officers. The awards have been divided into two sections.

The first includes all serving NOCs, constables, special constables and civilian members who have received a commissioner's commendation, George Medal or other sovereign's decorations for bravery before March 1 of this year.

FLOOD RESCUE

Staff-Sgt. William Murdoch, the Victoria sub-division NOC, received the commissioner's commendation for bravery when he attempted the apprehension of a mentally ill person in the Courtenay district Jan. 22, 1964.

The person was armed at the time.

The other recipient of the centennial medal in that category is Cpl. Robert Myles who is stationed in Victoria.

He was commended for rescuing three young boys marooned on an island in the flood-swollen Coldwater River at Merritt June 14, 1953.

TRAIN ESCORT

The other category is for members nominated by the division commanding officer.

The recipients are Sgt. Robert Crawford of Victoria and Cpl. Marvin Young of Campbell River. Sgt. Crawford was the NOC in charge of RCMP members who accompanied the Centennial train from Victoria to Medicine Hat, and also assisted in co-ordinating security and traffic control arrangements for visits of 11 royal and heads of states this year.

SECURITY DETAILS

Cpl. Young was transferred from Campbell River to Expo where he was employed in various security details for state visits to the Montreal area.

Sgt. Joachim von Brevern of the Chemainus detachment will receive the special thanks of the Order of St. John for his assistance in the furtherance in the work of the order.

'You've Found My Grass'

A man who admitted ownership of three plastic bags of marijuana found in a milk carton in a refrigerator was sentenced in central magistrate's court Friday to one year in jail for possession of a narcotic.

Francis Neel, 476 Dupplin, was sentenced after Magistrate William Ostler had found him not guilty of possession of marijuana for the purpose of trafficking and not guilty of possession of methamphetamine — a drug controlled by the Food and Drug Act — for the purpose of trafficking.

CONSTABLE'S FIND

Possession of methamphetamine is not an offence.

Neel was charged after the marijuana was found in the refrigerator of his suite Nov. 26. Court was told Monday that RCMP Constable Daniel Stene said when he discovered the narcotic: "What have we here?"

'SILVER PAPER'

Four packages wrapped in silver paper were found in Neel's wallet in the Saanich police station the same day. An analysis showed this to be methamphetamine.

Constable Stene said Friday that the plastic bags of marijuana weighed one ounce each. Four match boxes of marijuana could be filled from one ounce of the drug and seven to 14 cigarettes could be made from each match box full.

NO EVIDENCE

Magistrate Ostler said in his judgment: "It is not inconceivable that a regular smoker of marijuana would want this quantity of marijuana for his own use."

"There was no evidence of a bagging operation . . . on inspection for the sale of this material."

He said there was no evidence that Neel did not have the controlled drug for his personal use.

The magistrate then acquitted Neel on the two trafficking charges but found him guilty of possession of marijuana.

He said to Neel: "You were found in possession of what is a substantial amount of marijuana."

Concerning possession of the drug, the magistrate said: "Certainly the message has been given loud and clear by the appeal court and echoed by lower courts. A number of persons apparently have not received the message or, if they have, they have ignored it."

"It is essential to repeat the message. It is a serious offence so declared by parliament and senior courts."

Crown counsel Rodney Taylor said Neel was convicted in Victoria in 1964 of possession of a narcotic, Glauhid. Robert Price appeared for the defence.

Edward Sukis, 809 Powell, had a charge of possession of marijuana withdrawn. He was with Neel Nov. 26.

Gary Nieman, 131 Sims, pleaded guilty to possession of marijuana and was remanded to Dec. 8 for a pre-sentence report.

RCMP Sergeant W. L. Dempsey said several RCMP and city police officers went to a house in the 2500-block Ludgate Oct. 6. City Constable William Huelsin found Nieman, holding out a cigarette, Sgt. Dempsey said. It was found to contain marijuana.

Inmates of the Wilkeson Road jail had to be taken inside for safety when a bullet hit a sensor near them, court was told.

Steven Karvales, 4231 Interurban, pleaded guilty to failing to use a firearm safely and was fined $50. Prosecutor Cory Stobbe said a report was received Oct. 8 of a person shooting a .22 calibre rifle over the exercise yard at the prison.

Karvales denied doing the shooting, Mr. Stobbe said. He told police officers he had shot a pig in his backyard in the morning and had used a pellet gun in the afternoon to scare pigeons.

Douglas Going, no fixed address, was sentenced to three months in jail when he pleaded guilty to stealing a $3 bottle of bath oil from Estrens Thursday. He admitted a lengthy record of theft.

A 20-year-old youth released the brake of a car on Courtney Thursday night, causing the car to roll backwards, and then unbraked on the seat of the car. Donald Johnson, CFB Esquimalt, pleaded guilty to causing a disturbance by being drunk. He was fined $25.

Magistrate Ostler said: "If you caused any damage to the car seat, you should clean it up."

Albert Edward Anderson of Campbell River pleaded guilty to seven counts of false pretences and was remanded to Dec. 8 for a pre-sentence report.

He wrote worthless cheques in the city, Saanich and Oak Bay in October and November, receiving goods and cash worth $134.

A meter stolen from a fishing boat Oct. 11 was left at security at a city store for an $8 bill, court was told.

Joseph Raymond Johnson, 19, of 117 Superior pleaded guilty to breaking into the fishing boat Catherine B on Oct. 11 and stealing the $11 meter. He was remanded to Dec. 8 for sentence.

Mark Thompson, CFB Esquimalt, was remanded to Dec. 8 for sentence when he pleaded guilty to being in possession of a rifle stolen from Duncan Nov. 11.

Douglas Carlson, 736 Laverder, was fined $100 when he pleaded guilty to soliciting to do repairs to a house in the 1100-block Beach Drive Aug. 28 without a licence.

Wilbert Lukin, 2780 Spencer, was fined $35 for careless driving.

Essay on Fire Pays Dividend

Firefighting is becoming big business for 13-year-old Trevor William Dawson, 1615 Gladstone.

The Victoria youth recently won second place and a $250 prize in a national centennial youth essay contest sponsored by the Canadian Association of Fire Chiefs, and dealing with a history of firefighting in the community.

There's an additional reward coming up for the youngster.

He will be guest of the Fleet School of CFB Esquimalt Friday and will spend most of the day witnessing a series of firefighting operations at the school's NBCD division in the Colwood area.

He will watch a class of Canadian Forces servicemen fight an oil blaze, a gasoline fire and electrical fires. Different equipment is used to combat each type.

Not only will the afternoon be of special interest to Trevor, but it will also assist him in his Boy Scout program. He is working toward becoming a Queen Scout, and in the near future is required to present three lectures on firefighting.

Police Hunt Missing Man In Gambling Ring Arrests

CALGARY (CP) — Thirteen of 17 defendants were freed on bail Friday after their arrest in cross-Canada gambling raids the day before.

Police said they are still seeking one man in connection with what they termed a multi-million dollar gambling operation.

He was identified as Charles Masgid of Winnipeg.

Four other suspects, who were in custody Friday night, were scheduled to appear in court today at 10 a.m.

The men were flown to Calgary Thursday after their arrests in Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, Regina and Vancouver.

Charles Chislock, 54, of Winnipeg and Arthur McDonald, 46, of Springfield, Alta., were freed on $5,000 bail.

Robert Miller, 24, of Montreal, the son of David Miller, was released Thursday night after posting $10,000 bail.

Scheduled to appear in court today were: Patrick Perry, 43, of Toronto; George Popescu, 44, of Regina; Russell Pollock, 39, of Vancouver and Jeremiah Katz, 29, of Winnipeg.

The men are all charged with conspiring to engage in book-making or the business of betting and with conspiring to aid or assist in the commission of an offence under Section 117 of the Criminal Code of Canada dealing with betting and book-making.

Cigarette Increase Spells Doom for Some Machines

TORONTO (CP) — The president of Gilcrest Vending Ltd. said Friday nearly 25 per cent of automatic cigarette vending machines in Canada will have to be scrapped in the wake of expected cigarette price increases resulting from Thursday's tax boost.

Mr. Gauvreau, whose company sells and services automatic machines across Canada, said it will cost about $25 to adjust each new machine that can handle the extra five cents. New machines cost about $500.

Liquor prices in Quebec were increased between 20-35 cents a bottle Friday although Jean Pierre Latulippe, Quebec Liquor Board controller, said there would be no increase in the price of wines and imported beers handled at board outlets.

The increases apply to all products coming under the general term "hard liquor."

Gale Isolates Island

Campbell River throughout the afternoon, and the storm was described by many as the worst in years.

Tyee Plaza shopping centre was barricaded during Friday afternoon when huge seas swept over the breakwater on Discovery Crescent and flooded the road and shopping entrance with waves up to a foot high.

All stores in one block downtown were without power during the 5 p.m. rush hour.

A tree was blown down to General Hill. Arne Axel of Gold River, drove into it and was admitted to hospital but a spokesman said his injuries were slight.

HEAVY RAIN

More than one and one half inches of rain fell in Port Alberni throughout the late afternoon and night.

Several streets were flooded and small lakes played havoc with cars.

The coast guard lifeboat at Cape Beale, at the mouth of the Alberni Canal, was called out in the afternoon to help an unidentified, 20-foot fishing boat which made a call for help after developing engine trouble.

TOWED IN

The boat and its crew were towed in safely.

However, the lifeboat had to make a quick search for one crew member in a small skiff who had gone for aid. He and the skiff were found within a few minutes, partly obscured by huge waves.

Courtenay was blacked out for 20 minutes during the afternoon and several surrounding areas without power for six hours Friday night.

LINE DOWN

Telephone lines were down at Oyster River and Comox.

At Cape St. James, on the south end of the Queen Charlottes, winds were recorded at more than 83 miles an hour. In Victoria, the average windspeed at 8:30 p.m. Friday was 52.

Elsewhere:

Greater Victoria—B.C. Hydro had 40 men in 11 trucks repairing downed lines. B.C. Telephone had the same problems. The airport, Swartz Bay ferry terminal, Esquimalt, Metchesin, Colwood, William Head and

Rocky Point areas had the most serious power failures.

In the Metchesin district, residents were in the dark for about three hours. In Saanich, powerlines were cut at six or seven locations. In Esquimalt, the police were flooded with similar telephone calls.

In the city itself, the calls were less frequent. One of the gusts swept the roof right off a garage at the R. D. Ward residence, 887 Bank. There was no estimate of damage.

The heavy seas forced the navy to cancel a reserve training cruise of the gate vessels Porte de la Reine and Porte Quebec. They were to have sailed at 8 p.m. Friday for a weekend trip to Seattle.

Tofino — Hydro crews were working on power lines Friday night as lights in the village flickered intermittently during the afternoon and night.

Ucluelet — Power was off six hours. Winds gusted to 80 miles an hour shortly after 3 p.m. in the height of the storm on the West Coast. Fishermen praised the new boat basin, saying several boats would have been smashed without its protection. Cowichan Valley—Cobble Hill reported a gust at between 50 and 60 miles an hour.

Some trees were brought down on roads, traffic was blocked for a while on Cherry Creek Road but the valley escaped relatively unscathed. Nanaimo — Westerly and line.

Filling Christmas Stocks Early

Bottle-Buyers Rush to Beat Tax

Christmas came early to Victoria this year, as hundreds of tipplers thronged government liquor stores to buy their holiday supplies before the threatened price hike occurs.

Liquor stores in Sidney, Colwood and the Victoria stores on Fort and Humboldt streets all reported brisk business, with people buying their normal Christmas amounts, rather than a straight weekend provision.

A voice at the Government Street store said frostily, "I have no comment. We don't give any information to the press at all."

However, a patient Colonist reporter stood in line at 7 p.m. Friday for 15 minutes before he reached the cash register, and enviously listened to orders for amounts ranging from $50 to $70 in value.

Notable exceptions were the Esquimalt and Saanich stores, where vendors reported no appreciable increase in the amounts being purchased.

Saanich, however, said the trade was brisk, even for Friday.

pronounced increase in business.

But tobaccoists said their sales Friday had not varied as the result of Finance Minister Sharp's "meaty" budget announcement.

The price rise decreed in the federal mini-budget Thursday won't hit the B.C. liquor stores until "early next week," Attorney General Bonner said Friday.

Wind Rips Hydro Lines

Darkness Smothers Several Districts

Three separate districts of the Greater Victoria area still were without power this morning, hours after the height of Friday's windstorm.

At 12:30 a.m. today, B.C. Hydro reported that its crews were attempting to restore electrical service to the Gordon Head area, which went into blackness at 6:30 p.m.

Power also was off in parts of Esquimalt and along some segments of Saanich Road.

EXTRA CREWS

Meanwhile, Hydro was bringing in extra crews this morning to relieve hungry and tired repairmen who had been patching up downed powerlines since dusk.

A Hydro spokesman said the windstorm had left Greater Victoria with "widespread trouble . . . involving just about every area."

The 11 repair crews had gone without supper to attend to the emergency calls, which throughout the evening flooded a Hydro switchboard that was being answered by six employees.

CLOSE TO SPELL

A young Sidney hunter said his boat repeatedly came close to being capsized during a four-hour voyage in the storm.

What normally would have been a pleasant, half-hour cruise turned out to be a three-hour nightmare for Gordon Dickson, 20, of 2308 Harbor Road.

He had been duck shooting on Sheep Island and left the Gulf Island location for Sidney about 1:30 p.m. on the four-mile trip in an 18-foot boat.

STEERING LOSS

About half-way home, the boat's steering gear broke and the small craft drifted in 10-foot waves.

"The force of the waves broke the gear and the whole boat nearly capsized several times. I was drenched and cold," he said.

"The wind-swept spray never let up. In the 12 years I've been in boats around here, I've never seen it so rough."

TURNED AROUND

The rough seas also were harrowing for two busloads of people aboard the Queen of Vancouver. They boarded at Swartz Bay and almost made it to Tsawwassen when the B.C. Ferry vessel was forced to turn around because another ferry was lodged sideways in the slips.

OLD STUFF

For Art Collier of 848 Hockley, the bus driver, it was old stuff—he is a veteran of six years and 10 months in the Canadian Navy.

"I feel fine, I'm just hungry," he told the dispatcher on his arrival at the depot.

At Claremont senior high school, an audience of 200 showed their love of drama when they stayed through a performance of Our Town despite Friday night's darkness.

POWER GONE

Hallway through the first set the power went off, said lighting manager Bob Condon. Three emergency lights in the gymnasium auditorium were pressed into service but they didn't last long.

Two cars were then driven to the rear of the gymnasium and, with doors open, they provided light until about five minutes before the final curtain when power was restored.

Commuters Causing Oak Bay Congestion

Oak Bay is a little upset by the parking habits of some peninsula residents according to Miss E. M. Geddes, representative of that municipality on the Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

What they do, Miss Geddes told a directors' meeting Friday, was to drive in from the outlying districts, park their cars in the business section of Oak Bay, take a bus and ride to work in Victoria.

At the end of the workday they bus back to Oak Bay village, get in their cars and drive home.

"Of course it means that valuable parking space is occupied for the whole day. Needless to say this is not looked on with favor by the authorities."

"I think it's rather a good idea," said Bernard Cox, a supervisor associated with B.C. Hydro transportation.

Saanich Hints Reasonable McRae Pact

Saanich will have the McRae Estate sold at a reasonable price, Reeve Hugh Curtis announced Friday night.

He said negotiations are now only concerned with the discussion of details.

"It's a magnificent acquisition for Saanich and, while the interest is higher than we had hoped for, charges can and will be eased," he said.

FINAL COST

The reeve explained that several ways to offset the gross costs are under active consideration, to reduce final cost to the municipality.

"This involves tidying up the estate into a tighter acreage, he said, without interfering with its value as a recreational park facility."

"This is now the object of active consideration by the planning department, and the total figure will be reduced in this way."

TALKS MOVING
The reeve said negotiations with the family are proceeding "very satisfactorily."

"Their lawyers now are working on the titles of various parcels of land which are involved, and I think the deal will be concluded very quickly."

Saanich has agreed to pay $1,200,000 for the estate—$900,000 down and the balance of $300,000 payable over five years plus costs of arbitration and interest.

Saanich Confused

Filter Rules 'Too Much'

Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread's ban on filter systems for sewage disposal is creating an administrative fiasco, Saanich planner T. W. Loney said Friday.

The senior medical health officer informed Saanich this week that sand filter systems will no longer be permitted.

The doctor said this type of sewage disposal will not be permitted "and should not be considered when future subdivisions are under consideration for approval. Any previous decision on this matter should be cancelled."

TOO SOON

The new regulations may be good legislation, Mr. Loney said, "but I think it's too much, too soon."

"If we make a change now, what happens?"

In the opinion of Reeve Hugh Curtis, Dr. Whitbread's action "leaves a lot of questions unanswered."

"In addition," he said, "it strongly underlines the need for prompt action on putting sewers in the ground, and falls in line with the intensive work undertaken this year not only by Saanich council but by the regional district board."

'UNREALISTIC'

Mr. Loney said the regulations are "unrealistic until we have more sewers."

Enforcement would push development into what little land is left in Saanich that is severed and vacant. It would have an "artificial effect on land values."

It would be bad from the point of view of regional development because it would force growth into other areas in a disorganized fashion.

"Once we get sewers in, then we can clamp down," Mr. Loney said, "but it doesn't make sense to do it now."

He said the municipality will present its views to the deputy minister of health.

"Quite frankly, I don't see how the sub-divisions which are now registered, or which have been given conditional approval, can be turned down. The same goes for applicants who have been advised to prepare filter designs and have spent considerable money on them."

THREE CATEGORIES
Development engineer Joseph Barber-Starkey said application fell into three categories—those given preliminary approval subject to acceptable design; subdivisions approved on the submission of the engineers preliminary design and final approval.

"We've just approved 33 lots off Shelbourne, he said. "And what's going to happen to Ten Mile Point? It's all rock."

There are about 16,775 dwellings in Saanich, another Saanich official said, with 9,194 of them on sewers.

Mr. Loney said a report would be made to Saanich council Monday night on all aspects of the situation.

Stirling, Tanner and model of clinic

Pearkes Honored In Two Buildings

By DON GAIN

Lieutenant-Governor Pearkes will give his name to two buildings in Saanich, both of which will be associated with the welfare of children.

The buildings, scheduled to start next year, are the Handicapped Children's Clinic and the Tillamook ice arena.

Announcement was made of the clinic's name Friday by board president Fred Turner, at an organization meeting in the Union Club for a fund-raising drive for the clinic.

AFTER MEETING

After the meeting, Reeve Hugh Curtis of Saanich announced his council also had chosen Mr. Pearkes' name for the arena.

Mr. Curtis said, "We look upon His Honor as the most outstanding citizen that Saanich has ever had and his agreement to our request is a source of very great satisfaction."

"The arena at Tillamook will be known as the George H. Pearkes Arena. Because of the lieutenant-governor's very keen interest in the activities of children, and particularly with regard to minor hockey, we feel that a more appropriate name could not be chosen."

BOD TURNING

"It's our hope that the sod-turning ceremony will be so timed as to permit his attendance."

A $650,000 building is planned on the Queen Alexandra Salarium grounds for the Handicapped Children's Clinic. A capital campaign aimed at raising $250,000 will begin the first of the year. Federal and provincial governments will make up the $400,000 if the fund-raising goal is reached.

Campaign chairman Rear-Admiral (ret.) Michael Stirling said

Friday the campaign would run till March and it was hoped ground would be broken for the new clinic sometime next summer.

YEARS AGO

Mr. Turner said dedicated people have worked a long time to get the campaign off the ground. He said that 15 years ago, The Cerebral Palsy Association of Lower Vancouver Island, cared for children in the annex of Royal Jubilee Hospital.

A move was made to a renovated army hut provided by the University of Victoria, but the increase in the number of children cared for calls for more spacious quarters.

The project resulted from an offer of three acres of land by the Solarium on a 40-year lease basis.

The clinic offers treatment and training to 112 youngsters. Among those assisting in the campaign are Gordon Empey, E. H. Osbeck, Archie Smith, Howard McKay and W. A. Du Moulin.

Armed Robber Takes $40 Earlier Attempt Fruitless

Holdup men hit twice in just over an hour late Friday, getting away with $40 in one attempt and nothing in the other. In both instances, the general description of the robber was the same.

In the successful raid, a man walked into the Island Trading Company, 630 Johnson, and approached the counter. As he leaned over, proprietor Jack Krasinsky saw a partially concealed revolver.

"He asked me for the money in the till," Mr. Krasinsky told police. He said he wasn't scared and asked the man if he was kidding.

NOT KIDDING

"No, I'm not," replied the gunman and the proprietor handed over the $40.

The bandit then walked quietly and calmly out of the store and apparently disappeared.

He was described as five feet, 10 inches tall, about 25 years old and wearing an athletic windbreaker with black and yellow stripes.

ASKED FOR RINGS

Earlier, at 5:05 p.m., a man answering the same general description, only wearing a dark overcoat and light colored trousers, entered Stoddart Jewellers, 605 Fort, and asked to see some engagement rings. He then flashed a gun and demanded money.

"I thought he was going to shoot me between the eyes," related Mrs. Evelyn Flett,

CNR Willing to Help with Estimate

Cargo Jam 'Imperils' Port

By A. H. MURPHY

Dredging between piers, repairs to caissons and removal of buildings to provide more storage space are all needed if Ogden Point is to continue as a "going concern," Chamber of Commerce directors were told Friday.

George Farmer, chairman of the chamber's transportation group, said he headed a delegation to Vancouver recently to talk with Canadian National Railway officials about improvements to the shipping depot.

The CNR, which leases the area from the federal government, was co-operative,

Mr. Farmer said, and was willing to prepare a cost estimate for improvements. After that, he thought, it would be up to the chamber to petition Ottawa to do the work.

At a recent meeting Mr. Farmer said that shipments of lumber were falling off at Ogden Point, and one reason was that there was not enough space for storage.

Unless something was done the commercial well-being of the depot would be imperilled.

The group was not getting much action on the matter of an access road from the Patricia Bay Highway to the airport, Mr. Farmer said.

The provincial government had promised to pay half the cost and, as a last resort but without much hope, the group had written to North Saanich asking if that municipality would assist.

"I suppose we will have to go back to the provincial government again," Mr. Farmer said. "Perhaps we might get somewhere if we named a Vancouver road after Gagliardi as I see they have done in two places on the mainland."

The application of Victoria Flying Services for a Victoria-Vancouver charter franchise will be supported by the chamber Monday at a meeting of the federal board of transport commissioners to be held in Victoria.

The resolution of support specified that it was in support of fixed-wing transport but not against any other type.

Members of the board of directors were told there would be two applications for helicopter transport and two more for hovercraft.

Chamber president William Armstrong emphasized that the application of Victoria

Flying Services had been supported not because it was the only local firm, but because it was felt that it could do the best job for the travelling public.

There was some discussion on the provincial government announcement that the Kelsey Bay-Prince Rupert ferry service would not be resumed until March 28 following damage to the Queen of Prince Rupert after the hit a reef last summer.

However, it was decided not to take any positive action until after a meeting of the Associated Chambers of Commerce of Vancouver Island, scheduled for next week.

SAIGON (UPI) — The U.S. embassy Friday vigorously denied a report that U.S. and Viet Cong officials had met in Saigon or ever planned such a conference.

An embassy statement said the reports, published by two Saigon newspapers and another wire service, were "false." The embassy said it was "equally false" that U.S. diplomats had anything to do with the resignation of Brig. Gen. Nguyen Ngoc Loan.

Tribunal

Genocide Charged
To U.S.

COPENHAGEN (Reuters) — The Bertrand Russell International War Crimes Tribunal Friday found the United States guilty of committing genocide in the Vietnam war.

The tribunal, sitting in the Danish capital, also found the U.S. guilty of using forbidden weapons, mistreating and killing prisoners, violence and forced movement of civilians and aggression in Laos and Cambodia.

The verdicts Friday followed the first such tribunal convened by British philosopher Bertrand Russell in Stockholm, Sweden, in May which found the U.S. guilty of aggression in Vietnam. Neither tribunal had any official or legal standing.

The second tribunal, which began meeting Nov. 20, was asked to decide whether the U.S. Army experimented with new weapons or used weapons prohibited under the Geneva convention, such as gas and chemical products.

It also was asked to decide whether prisoners were tortured or hostages executed. Another question was whether deportation or other measures that could legally be described as genocide were used in Vietnam.

The tribunal jury said it also found Japan, Thailand and the Philippines accessories to what it termed American aggression.

Dak To Hot
Again

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. command Friday reported new battles around Dak To, South Vietnam.

The report suggested the Communists were following familiar tactics—attacking in border areas near their supply bases with the aim of diverting anti-Communist forces from vital rural pacification tasks and perhaps scoring an important morale-boosting victory.

Field reports said Communist gunners opened up with mortars and rockets about dusk Friday on an artillery base of the U.S. 173d Airborne Brigade 12 miles west of Dak To in the central highlands. Two Americans were reported killed and seven wounded in the two-hour barrage.

COSTLIEST BATTLE

The costliest battle of the war ended at Dak To near the Cambodian border Nov. 23 with American capture of Hill 875. The dead included 280 Americans, 52 South Vietnamese and 1,388 Communists.

Further south, near the Bu Dop U.S. Special Forces camp several miles from the Cambodian border and 10 miles from Loi Ninh, a U.S. 1st Infantry Division battalion was preparing for more Viet Cong guerrilla attacks.

SAIGON (AP) — A high-ranking emissary from the Viet Cong guerrillas' National Liberation Front has been arrested by South Vietnamese police, informed sources reported Friday.

Their account was that the emissary was on his way to a meeting with U.S. embassy officials in Saigon, but the embassy denied this.

A member of South Vietnam's House of Representatives, Phan Xuan Huy, told the House the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency had been trying to set up a contact with the National Liberation Front without telling the Saigon government. He said the arrest of the Viet Cong emissary and U.S. embassy presence on the national police director to release the man had led the director, Brig. Gen. Nguyen Ngoc Loan, to offer his resignation last week. The resignation was not accepted.

There was no direct information whether the emissary might have been on a peace mission or intended to discuss other matters—possibly a prisoner exchange or ceasefire periods at Christmas and New Years.

Rumors that possible talks were being arranged between the Americans and the Viet Cong have been current in Saigon for some time.

Recently captured Viet Cong documents indicated that the Communists were aiming to increase their military victories with the goal of strengthening their position to enter negotiations and possibly to enter into a coalition government.

South Vietnam's leaders, most of the military men, strongly oppose a possible coalition government and would be adverse to meetings between the United States and the Viet Cong if the meetings had such an aim in mind.

Martial Law

Thailand Fights Red Terror

BANGKOK (AP) — The Thai government Friday imposed martial law on five southern and central provinces in an effort to thwart a growing Communist terror movement.

Several hundred Chinese Communist guerrillas have been operating in the southern province since their rebellion crumbled in Malaysia in 1960.

A decree gives the government sweeping powers to arrest and hold Communist suspects and to relocate whole villages in an effort to cut off any support for the guerrillas.

Martial law has been in force for several years in seven provinces of northeast Thailand where Communists had concentrated their efforts.

The government last month moved a battalion of the well-trained 1st Army Division into the Kumburi district of Prachuap province, 150 miles south of Bangkok on the Kra Isthmus which links Thailand and Malaysia.

The country narrows down to a width of about 10 miles in places with Burma on one side and the Gulf of Thailand on the other.

Terrorists have hit government forces hard in Prachuap province in recent months. In August, a police convoy was ambushed and five police were killed. A month later, a few miles away, terrorists hit a second patrol killing all 10 officers and men.

France, U.S. Split Over Trade, Cash

PARIS (CP) — Ministers of the 21-nation Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) ended their meeting Friday night amid indications of sharp disagreement between France and the United States over trade and monetary policies.

Neutrality Hinted For France

PARIS (Reuters) — An article by Gen. Charles Ailleret, French Army chief of staff, raises speculation that France would leave NATO and become a neutral country.

The article in the December issue of the National Defence Review also suggests France should have nuclear missiles capable of striking anywhere in the world.

The right-wing newspaper L'Aurore uses the article as the basis for speculating that France would leave NATO.

In an editorial, the newspaper says the article either has no sense or President de Gaulle considers that France could alone handle its own defence, meaning neutrality.

RED THREAT

Ailleret says the North Atlantic Treaty Organization has several drawbacks and that a Soviet threat after the Second World War, which was the original reason for French participation, no longer exists.

Information Minister Georges Gorse said Friday: "I do not know whether Gen. Ailleret's views coincide with those of the French government but they do not correspond to any decision of the French government. These views, however, are not in contradiction with French policy."

two hours by last-minute wrangling among the members.

In a reference to international balance of payments problem, the communiqué said: "Opinions diverged on the share of responsibility of different countries in the search for equilibrium."

Conference sources said France insisted that greater responsibility for restoring equilibrium between the deficit and surplus countries rests with the deficit countries—Britain and the United States.

U.S. PLEA

But the U.S. contended that deficit and surplus countries should get together and the Common Market countries should help the U.S., the sources reported.

They said the German delegation offered a compromise that was basically adopted.

The communiqué said the ministers "stressed the need for both surplus and deficit countries to continue and intensify their efforts to reduce their persisting disequilibrium."

PAYMENTS BALANCE

It added: "Ministers were ... at one in recognizing that common efforts would be needed as a contribution to a better equilibrium in the international balance of payments."

The position of the United States, which has a payments deficit of about $2,000,000,000, is that the countries of the Common Market—which together have a surplus of about $4,000,000,000—should make an effort to export their capital at the same time that the United States is trying to reduce its capital outflow.

CONCERTED ACTION

French Finance Minister Michel Debre said Thursday that although he agrees a concerted action is necessary to solve the problem, the only thing he could recommend was that the United States reduce its dollar outflow by cutting foreign expenditures and investments.

Earlier Friday, the organization approved in principle temporary special tariff treatment for underdeveloped countries.

Under the special treatment, approved by Canada among others, leading developed nations would lower or even eliminate tariffs for goods from underdeveloped countries.

TEMPORARY SCHEME

The agreement will be taken to a meeting in New Delhi, India, of the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development two months from now.

Communist Diplomats

Mideast Pact Ruled Out

LONDON (UPI) — High-level Communist diplomats Friday dismissed chances for a Mideast peace settlement "for years to come" because the Soviet Union does not have sufficient control over President Nasser of Egypt.

With positions of both Arabs and Israelis hardening fast, "The chances for a negotiated settlement can all but be ruled out in the foreseeable future," these diplomats said.

Russia wants a settlement but has reached the conclusion she cannot force it or even actively promote it, they said, adding that Russian influence with Arab leaders, notably Nasser, is limited.

Moscow's diplomacy in the Arab world appears, from these indications, to be aiming at "containing" Nasser and preventing some new venture that could precipitate war.

In Cairo and Arab League source said Friday 11 Arab kings and leaders will meet in Rabat, Morocco, Dec. 12, to discuss the Mideast problem.

The summit will be preceded by a meeting of Arab foreign ministers in Rabat Dec. 9 to draft an agenda.

Two countries have not replied to the Arab League's invitation — Syria and Saudi Arabia.

Cairo also claimed Egyptian anti-aircraft guns downed three of four Israeli jets that violated Egyptian air space Friday at the southern end of the Suez Canal. An Israeli spokesman replied only one plane was downed.

In Jerusalem, Premier Levi Eshkol repeated Israeli assertions that direct negotiations with Arab states are the only acceptable basis for a Mideast peace. He said Israel is prepared, meanwhile to hold on to Arab territories it occupied in the war last June.

Springs of Ahousat New Park Nucleus

The famed hot springs near Ahousat, used by generations of Indians, have become the nucleus of a new marine park on the west coast of Vancouver Island.

A cabinet order Friday set up a 308-acre park on Flores Island, north of Tofino, and named it after the Gibson family of Vancouver who were active in logging in the area.

Former Liberal MLA Gordon Gibson was approached by the government. Parks director Harold McWilliams said Mr. Gibson acted as intermediary in negotiations which resulted in the Gibson family donating a piece of property containing the hot springs for park use.

The government then added a sizeable chunk of Crown land to bring the park up to 308 acres, which included some good beaches on Flores Island, Mr. McWilliams said.

The parks branch has no immediate plans for development of the new park, Mr. McWilliams said, but the area will be open for use by boatmen and Indians who now use the hot springs to do their washing.

The concerts will continue until Dec. 15.

Tips You Off

MEXICO CITY — At 7,400 feet Mexico City literally took my breath away. It does that to people sometimes. Unseen but dramatic changes are going on in you.

There's shortage of oxygen. You are astonished to be winded after a two-block walk. (You're walking too fast. Slow. Window shop.)

Digestion is slower at this altitude. (Lay off the big breakfast if you want to go to the elegant restaurant tonight.)

Drinks hit you harder and faster. Airplanes must land at higher speeds in this thin air. But everything is downhill from Mexico City. If you get that dragged out feeling (as I did this time), drive an hour down to Cuernavaca at 5,000 feet and breathe deep again. A couple of days adjustment and you can take Mexico City.

"Will it be hard to get rooms during the Olympics in Mexico City next year?"

Travel agents and hotel men here say no problem. New hotels being built. The Olympic Village in good progress. (But how anybody can run in this altitude beats me. I couldn't make 25 yards of the 100 at a brisk walk.)

A travel agent at home is the best assurance of a room. I wouldn't bet on writing direct.

On paper, Mexico still works on what they hope will happen. What does happen may be nothing. And the most polite apologies you ever heard.

Example: In past years rent cars have always been delayed. "The previous renter did not return the car on time. The car is being repaired etc." This time I had the car delivered a day in ADVANCE.

I had it parked in a lot. I had the keys in my pocket. Secure. I checked out in the morning. Put the bags in the trunk. Tipped the bellboy and said, "Adios." Turned on the key — and the battery had gone down overnight.

Just when you think, "How modern Mexico has become!" — the handle falls off the shower. (I repaired it with the screwdriver blade of my knife. This is your emergency kit in Mexico. And emergencies come often. The house repairman is ALWAYS out to lunch. Depend on it.)

In my present hotel, the flush lever of the toilet shoots a spray of water five feet across the room. It is better than the shower.

This is no country for the impatient. Each morning you see the foreigners tapping their feet in the lobby, waiting for the late arriving tour conductor. (He is having a leisurely breakfast around the corner.)

You can phone. You can argue. You can swear or threaten. But you're spinning your wheels. Better to buy a newspaper and have another coffee.

After putting a new battery in my car and doing some rewiring — "Somebody has put the wires in wrong, senior" — the mechanic could not get HIS car started. Unfortunately, he had it parked so it blocked mine from getting out. That took another half hour. ("Keep your cool, man," I said to myself. But it was hard going.)

"We are thinking of living in Mexico for a few months or even years..."

This is the best of all. Foreigners who live in Mexico live well. The handles don't fall off their showers. Or, if they do, there's plenty of time to get them fixed. They have cars and don't wait for tours or rent cars.

There are towns within an hour of the capital where it's not too high and the weather is always spring.

New Mexican immigration laws make it easy for you to live here. To rent, to buy, to build. You are off the tourist hotel-restaurant economy. Living is cheap. (But you can still go to the tourist restaurants occasionally. You are not isolated.)

You have magnificent climate. Mexico City is an exciting capital. The most modern life when you want it. And around the corner, a house built by Cortez.

LISBON — Vacation recipe: mix equal parts of Rome, Madrid and Paris, add a dash of San Francisco, a pinch of Monaco and sprinkle generously with a million people. Blend thoroughly.

Place in the sun for a few centuries, basting occasionally with Moorish charm. The final concoction is Lisbon, the most delectable piece of real estate in Europe.

For best results, digest slowly. Unfortunately, too many tourists in their haste to explore the more publicized cities of Europe make the mistake of breezing through Lisbon. Be a smart cookie. Allow plenty of time for the magic to jell.

Every explorer must have a base camp from which to operate. Some place that is away from the perils and rigors of probing unknown places. Mine is the Hotel Principe Real. A veritable treasure chest of comfort and friendliness.

It's a small place with only 24 rooms, but the owner, Jose Rezende, and his wife Maria make you feel like you're quartered in a palace.

They bought the Principe Real about a year ago and have made it into one of the finest small hotels in Europe. Each room is individually decorated (with many antiques) and has its own color scheme. This is carried through to such fine detail as the glasses in the bathroom — mine are a frosty blue.

Up on the fifth floor breakfast is served. It's the only meal offered in the hotel, but the view of the city is too beautiful and the room too charming to waste on just one meal. Jose says if he can find the right chef, he'll soon be serving candle-lit dinners.

One of the best features of the hotel is its location, which is within easy walking distance to the central part of town. Room tax is approximately $8 for a single.

Incidentally, there is another hotel in Lisbon called the Principe. Don't get the two confused. The address you want is Rua de Alegria, 53.

Within a stone's throw of the hotel is my favorite restaurant, a place called Sancho. The food is terrific. Try the scampi or a dish named bife a marinara. The latter is beefs cooked with butter, pepper, lemon juice and garlic. Located at Travessa da Gloria, 10, the best thing on the menu is a hamlet called the Sancho cup. It's a magnificent nectar of fresh fruit and ice cream. I usually have two with each meal.

Discotheques and gambling in nearby Estoril add up to fantastic nocturnal adventures, but for a night you'll long remember, slip into one of the fado caves like the O Fado at Rua da Barroca and listen as the fadista pours out her soul and strong men cry. You won't understand the words, but you'll know it's the blues.

Niagara Stunt Scheduled

HAMILTON (CP) — Strongman Frank Herendy plans an assault on Niagara Falls. Mr. Herendy, a Hungarian immigrant, hopes to cross the falls dangling by his teeth from a rope attached to a helicopter. He said he would be ready to make the crossing in about two weeks.

Millions Down Drain

By HARRY YOUNG
Business Editor

Another royal commission, which cost the country, business, industry and the public uncalculable millions in facing the fate of so many of its predecessors.

Finance Minister Sharp said enough in his mini-budget speech this week to suggest the Carter recommendations on tax reform are not acceptable, and few if any of them will be implemented as suggested.

While no one can yet say what of Carter will live and what will die, it is fairly apparent that the more radical suggestions are out.

BASIC FORM

These might include the new basic form of income tax, the family unit, the disposal of estates, the one-level corporation tax, the removal of concessions to the extractive industries and perhaps even capital gains.

The overwhelming amount of adverse criticism which resulted from Sharp's invitation to all interested parties to express their views on Carter, indicated the radical reforms were too much to stomach.

Many briefs presented information showing acceptance of Carter would not be practical even though it might appear desirable in theory.

OUT OF LINE

As J. V. Clyne, chairman of MacMillan, Bloedel Ltd. pointed out earlier this week, the new tax system would have been out of line with the tax methods of countries with which Canada has intimate trade dealings that chaos would be created.

What may happen is that Sharp will take one or two ideas from Carter as a gesture of appreciation for a monumental, if unacceptable, production.

WORST FEATURE

The worst feature of Carter was probably its discouragement of thrift and the building of family estates. It would have killed the incentive to save with its punitive treatment of residues from estates, and clearly that is not what the government wants.

Sharp was also mildly unenthusiastic about capital gains tax when he answered an NDP question with a non-committal statement that such a tax would produce initially very little revenue. It would also, by the experience of other countries, be an expensive one to administer.

SCOTIA GROWS FAST

The picture of growth shown in the annual reports of Canada's chartered banks was continued with the results of the Bank of Nova Scotia which, like the others, showed an improvement on the previous year.

Scotia Bank's net earnings of $12,909,768 (86 cents) compared with $11,700,301 (78 cents) in the previous year. Total assets rose to a record $4,138,719,179, an increase of 12 per cent from 1966's $3,680,687,989.

INCREASED EARNINGS

National Trust net profit for the year ended Oct. 31 was $2,063,169 ($1.30) compared with $1,881,566 ($1.01) a year ago.

BETTER PERFORMANCE

McKay Cormack Holdings Ltd. made a net profit of $99,013, after providing $30,482 for depreciation, in the six-month period to Oct. 31. This helped reduce the company's working capital deficiency to $268,884.

While new construction work for the Victoria company is virtually at a standstill, president E. C. Warner reports the company has secured a fair share of the repair work available.

DIVIDENDS OMITTED

Fraser Companies, an eastern pulp and paper manufacturing company, is not paying its regular 30-cent dividend for the fourth quarter. It also omitted the dividend in the third quarter.

Another firm to pass its dividend is the textile firm of Harvey Wood. It is omitting its semi-annual 20-cent payment on its cumulative A shares, raising the arrears to $5 a share.

CHEMICAL PROBLEMS

Reflecting the difficult times being encountered in the chemical industry generally, Canadian Industries Ltd. announced Friday it would cut its quarterly dividend to 12 cents for the fourth quarter of 1967.

The announcement, made by Sir Peter Allen, chairman, was that the earnings forecast for 1967 did not justify a continuance of the 17½-cent dividend paid in each of the first three quarters of this year.

Brothers

Minerals Post Record For Sixth Year in Row

A record for mineral production has been established in B.C. for the sixth successive year, according to preliminary estimates released Friday by the department of mines and petroleum resources.

Mines Minister Donald Brothers said the estimated increase above the value of 1966 production is $33,500,000 or almost 16 per cent. Total production for the year is expected to reach $381,800,000 compared with the 1966 total of $338,265,779.

Mr. Brothers said the values of all categories improved.

Production of fuels is up 27.4 per cent with natural gas worth $25,400,000, from $17,339,587.

Industrial minerals rose 23.6 per cent due largely to increased value of asbestos and increased production of sulphur. Metals gained 14.5 per cent in value with the greatest gains in copper and molybdenum.

Copper is by far the most valuable single mineral produced in 1967 and at more than $88,000,000 shows an increase of 57.5 per cent above the 1966 value. Structural materials including sand and gravel and cement show little change over the previous year.

Lower Figure Forecast for 1968

Budget Shows New Deficit Trend

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Sharp's budget Thursday night indicated a substantial revision in government thinking since early October.

In a statement to the Commons Oct. 4, Sharp said he would be aiming for a balanced budget on a national accounts basis for the fiscal year 1968-69.

This would mean a budgetary deficit of about $300,000,000 to $350,000,000.

LOWER FORECAST

But in his budget statement Thursday, Sharp predicted a 1968-69 deficit of $80,000,000.

The change may have little significance in the long run. A grand new assessment of economic conditions will be ready by budget time next spring, and two existing questions—cost of medical care insurance and the Expo debt—will be answered.

But the juggling predictions show how fluid government thinking is at a time of rapid developments in the economy.

The finance minister's penchant for extra budgets and frequent financial statements help reveal how precarious it can be to predict trends.

On Oct. 4, Sharp still was holding to his June 1 budget prediction of a $740,000,000 deficit for the 1967-68 fiscal year.

Thursday night this had jumped to $830,000,000, not counting the $45,000,000 he will garner by his tax changes—a five per cent surtax on basic income tax and a 10-per-cent increase in federal taxes on tobacco and liquor.

Sharp's byword is "flexibility" for the very reason that projections can quickly go sour in a changing economy.

In the Commons Thursday night, Conservative Weldon Montague (Perth) said the frequent budgets have been a series of adjustments to correct past mistakes.

CMA HEAD

Among some of the business community reactions Friday came criticism that Sharp is "paying for past sins."

Said R. A. Engstrom, president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association:

"Each year the government spends far more than the economy can produce in revenues, borrows to cover the difference, and still ends up coming back to the taxpayer for more. It's a vicious circle which will not be broken until our legislators learn to cut their coat according to their cloth."

Newspaper editorials doubted whether the tax increases would effectively fight inflation. So did Ross Thatcher, Liberal premier of Saskatchewan.

Flag-waving Saskatchewan Roughriders fans were greeted by a band and lots of hoopla when they arrived Friday in Ottawa for today's Grey Cup game.

Newcomer May Bolster Cougars' Defence Corps

With the help of some speed in usually slow bureaucratic circles, Victoria Cougars' coach Doug Anderson could be a much happier man at tonight's B.C. Junior Hockey League game against Kelowna Buckaroos at Memorial Arena.

If Anderson receives a release soon enough for Stacey Whiting, a right-handed defenceman from Kamloops, he will start and hopefully, take away one of the coach's problems.

All five of Anderson's current defences corps shot from the left side and Whiting, who played with Kamloops last season, could plug the gap at the right point.

Tudors, Nature Win Puck Tilts

Tudor Monarchs blew up a four-goal storm in the third period Friday night to grab a 4-2 come-from-behind win over Queen's Own Rifles at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

Another storm, by Mother Nature, knocked out the centre's power after two periods of the second game with Nanaimo leading Stockers, 4-1. League officials will meet later to decide on action to complete the game.

Sarkissian Paces UVic

VANCOUVER (CP) — University of B.C. Thunderbirds played a 7-7 tie with University of Victoria Vikings Friday night in an exhibition hockey game before 500 fans.

Victoria's Ted Sarkissian scored four goals to take individual honors. Other scorers for the Vikings were Mike Woodley, Terry Foreman and Mike McAvoy.

UBC got two-goal efforts from Jack James and Mickey McDowell and singles from Jack Morris, Don Fiddler and Bob Tambellini.

Totems, Bucks Score Victories

Seattle Totems retained their five point lead in the Western Hockey League Friday night with a 4-2 win over American League leaders Springfield Kings.

Portland Buckaroos snapped a second place tie with the San Diego Gulls by edging Vancouver Canucks, 2-0.

Seattle spotted Kings the first goal but took a 2-1 lead in the first and carried it through to the third. Kings tied the count but within 20 seconds Totems forged ahead again and they got an insurance counter another minute later.

Earl Heiskala with two, Bill Dineen and Chuck Holmes scored for the Totems and Randy Miller and Yves Locas for Springfield.

Veteran playmaker Art Jones set up two third-period goals as Portland grabbed their decision at Vancouver. Bill Saunders and Andy Heberton were the snipers.

Portland's Arnie Schmutz drew a penalty in the first minute of play when he struck Vancouver defenceman Bob Lemieux on the head, knocking him down.

Kelowna threatened to pull an upset Friday night at Kamloops when they exploded for four second-period goals and a 6-4 lead but Rockets banged in three in the third to snatch a 7-6 win.

Ticats Slim Favorites To Topple Roughriders

OTTAWA (CP) — Saskatchewan Roughriders and Hamilton Tiger-Cats, the opponents in today's Grey Cup, held last-minute strategy meetings Friday, practised briefly and assessed each other's strength.

As usual, neither made any mention of the other's weaknesses going into the annual Canadian final.

SLIGHT FAVORITES
Hamilton has been established as 3 1/2-point favorites to win their third Grey Cup in five years in forecast 32-degree temperatures. Snow was expected to hit Ottawa today, but forecasters said it probably wouldn't start until after the game.

Saskatchewan coach Eagle Keys said he was wary of the under-rated Hamilton offense.

Grey Cup television coverage on Channels 2, 6 and 8 starts at 9:30 a.m. today with the pre-game show and kick-off at 10:00. Radio stations CBU (890) and CKNW (880) are broadcasting the game.

and Ticats coach Ralph Sazio said for the umpteenth time his club will have to key on George Reed.

Keys, enlarging on his theory that Hamilton's offense might surprise in today's game, said he doesn't believe the Ticats have scored the way they are capable of this season.

APPROVES OF ZUGER
"Joe Zuger, Hamilton's quarterback, receives a lot of criticism, and I guess he's not a great quarterback—not yet, anyway. But he gets the job done."

"Moreover, we think Hamilton has improved a lot since we beat them by one point on Thanksgiving Day. The addition of quarterback Allen Smith gives them the outside threat."

Keys said Hamilton will not be able to knock any particular member of his club down at the line of scrimmage the way they did against receiver Margene Adkins of Ottawa Rough Riders.

"But they do protect their zones as well as any team I've seen," said Keys.

Sazio said his club will go home empty handed unless they can stop Reed.

It was a new twist since Sazio said earlier in the week that the Ticats will have to concede at least 100 yards to the power-running fullback.

PREDICTS FORMATION
"You can't stop him just by packing the centre of the line," Sazio said. "The one thing that Saskatchewan does well is operate from a spread formation."

"They will flank Hugh Campbell wide on one side and Gord Barwell wide on the other with Alan Ford and Ed Buchanan also in a spread formation."

"This leaves Reed as the only back remaining in the backfield — along with quarterback Ron Lancaster, of course. And because Lancaster can throw and has excellent receivers, this forces the defence to spread too."

"It's Reed and nobody else."

by Dave Morgan and Tom Holmes.

Oak Bay led 23-26 at the half and 43-34 at three-quarters, but it wasn't until the final quarter when Morgan and Holmes combined for 14 points that the Bays looked the definite victors.

Dave Tooby played great ball for Claremont, scoring 15 points while teammate Dave Baede added 15.

Morgan led Oak Bay with 16 points even though he sat one quarter out because of four personal fouls while Don Burrows contributed 15 just one more than Holmes.

EXHIBITION GAMES
St. Louis Gaels slipped by the Oak Bay "B" squad, 37-28, on 12-point performance of Pat Griffin, in an exhibition game. High scorer for Oak Bay was Dave Fitzpatrick with 10 points.

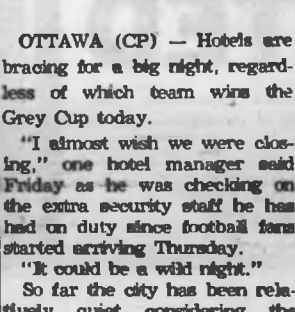

Visiting Chemaluns ripped Victoria High Totems, 39-34, in an exhibition game, as Gerry Plester scored 19 points for Chemaluns and Bill Clarke got 10 for the Totems.

Belmont won its first game of the season, clipping visiting Mt. Douglas, 41-39, in an exhibition game. Rick Allen scored 15 points for the winners while Lance Mar had 10 for Mt. Douglas.

OAK BAY (63) — Walter Burrows, Dave Weicker, Jamie Henderson, Brent Mulline, 2, 14 White, Dave Walker, Tom Holmes 16, Pete Mason & Don Burrows 15. Dave Morgan 15.

CLAREMONT (80) — Glen Cambridge, Dave Baede 15, Jim Barker 5, Dave Tooby 18, Ken Lindgren 2, Jim McKelvey 5, Don Anderson 10, Hinkinson, Mike Kirby, Don Sprinkling.

FAN FARE

Ottawa Braced for Party No Matter Who Wins

OTTAWA (CP) — Hotels are bracing for a big night, regardless of which team wins the Grey Cup today.

"I almost wish we were closing," one hotel manager said Friday as he was checking on the extra security staff he has had on duty since football fans started arriving Thursday.

"It could be a wild night."

So far the city has been relatively quiet considering the buildup towards today's Canadian Football League championship game between Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Saskatchewan Roughriders.

Hotel lobbies and bars have been crowded, but the streets have been almost bare at night, due in part to 20-degree temperatures.

Western fans didn't arrive in force until Friday and Hamilton fans, who have been coming in by plane, train, bus and car since Wednesday, are expected to make a final invasion this morning on the overnight train from Toronto.

There were two big official functions here Friday night—the annual Grey Cup dinner and the flash of a week-long bonspiel.

Downtown Ottawa could be a massive traffic jam this morning unless motorists heed warnings to avoid the area between the Parliament Buildings and city hall where the Grey Cup parade winds through the streets.

After the game, organizers hope to keep fans off the streets with a series of official parties and dances in different parts of the city.

"It's been awfully quiet so far this week," said a Toronto veteran of several Grey Cups.

"I just hope it stays this way. It'll be a pleasant change."

Scottish Rugby Champions Will Play Here

High school rugby received a big boost Friday with completion of arrangements to have a game against a selected high school team played in the city.

The B.C. tour being made this month by Glenald Trinity College, the Scottish school rugby champions.

The Scottish champions will play four of their five games on Vancouver Island and one in Vancouver.

TOUR SCHEDULE
They open their tour with a game at University School on Thursday, Dec. 7. Then they play at Brentwood College on Saturday, Dec. 9, and at Shawinigan Lake School on Wednesday, Dec. 13, before their game against the Selects on Saturday, Dec. 16.

Last game of the tour will be against St. George's of Vancouver on Thursday, Dec. 21.

"Getting this game against Trinity College has been the best thing that has happened to our school rugby program in years," said Till Briggs, who will act as co-coach of the South Island high school team along with Maurice Preece of Oak Bay high school.

TRIAL ON MONDAY
If there is enough interest and we get good support there is a chance that a selected Vancouver Island high school team could make a Scottish tour within the next two years."

Briggs, from Esquimalt high school, Preece and Ed Kubek of Claremont will act as a selection committee and have arranged a trial match for 3 p.m. Monday at Victoria high school on which to base their final judgments. Six players from Duncan's Cowichan high school have been invited to play in the trial.

Selects will play Trinity College at Macdonald Park with game time at 2 p.m. Admission change will be one dollar for adults and 50 cents for students and old-age pensioners.

Roughriders' Gord Barwell, a 23-year-old Canadian offensive end, isn't taking any chances. Barwell has a whole list of superstitions which he goes through before each game and he won't miss any today.

"One of the things is that I won't step on a yard stripe out at practice; I don't know why, but I make and effort not to," he said. "Another one is that I won't let anybody help me put my sweater on."

Hamilton has taken precautions against the expected freezing temperatures and frozen field. Coach Ralph Sazio said, "We'll use running shoes, special football socks with corrugated rubber cleats and specially-designed hand covers."

The Vikings' soccer team under coach Wally Miligan meets Simon Fraser University today at Gordon Head campus at 2 p.m. SFU defeated Victoria's second team, the Norsemen, 7-0, earlier this season.

On Monday, Bob Bell's Vikings' basketball team plays the tough Centralia College squad from Washington at 8 p.m.

Centralia, which won its conference title last season, has five returning lettermen and all 13 of its players are over six feet.

Baseball OKs Rule Changes

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Baseball deals by which a player is traded for "a player to be named later" were outlawed at Friday's joint meeting of the major leagues.

Baseball Commissioner William D. Eckert lined up with the National League to put through the rule change. The American had asked that the proposal be tabled.

Friday's action was aimed at deals such as those made last year by which New York Mets sent Ken Boyer to Chicago White Sox for an unnamed player and the White Sox similar deal with Cleveland Indians for Rocky Colavito.

The majors also voted to cut the player limit to 25 men from opening day until midnight Aug. 31. Previously, clubs had been allowed to carry 28 men in the first month of the season.

A new rule would require re-vocable inter-league waivers at $20,000 before a player can be released. If no club claims the player, he can make his own deal, as Ken Harrelson did with Boston last year when Charley Finley cut him loose from Kansas City. In the future the player must pass through the irrevocable waivers before he can be released.

The practice of releasing a player in the season and then signing him just before opening day, thus clearing room on the roster for younger players to be protected, was ruled out. Effective Aug. 31, 1968, a player released after Aug. 31 can not be signed by the same club before May 15 of the following year.

Eckert said he was pleased by the expansion moves of the two majors.

The 21-man player limits in both Class Triple A and double A minor leagues was approved as passed by the minors.

They'll Match Bumps Today

Nanaimo Track and Field Club have entered the largest team for the Vancouver Island closed age class cross country championships Sunday at Centennial Stadium at the University of Victoria campus.

Nanaimo has 83 of the 150 entries in the meet which is sponsored by James Bay Athletic Association.

The meeting starts at 12 noon with events ranging from the one mile course for pee wees to the five and one-half mile senior men's run. Local favorites are John Clift of Victoria Spartans in the men's event and JBAA's Dave Weisner and Wendy Thompson, the city high school champions.

Seattle Gets OK, NL Will Expand

MEXICO CITY (AP)—The National League voted unanimously Friday to expand to 12 teams no later than 1971 and the American League awarded a conditional expansion franchise for 1969 to a Seattle group.

The group includes Bill Dalky, former chairman of the board of Cleveland Indians and Dewey Soriano, president of the Pacific Coast League.

FOUR DELEGATIONS

The American League also listened to representatives of four different groups seeking the new Kansas City Franchise, which will be activated with Seattle in 1969. After further screening, Dec. 14 in Kansas City, the owner of the new franchise will be selected Jan. 11 at Chicago.

Later, the cost of the new American League franchise was set at $5,350,000 apiece. Seattle and Kansas City each will shell out $5,250,000 for 30 players—three from each of the 10 existing clubs—at $175,000 membership fee.

Payments to the player pension fund are expected to boost the total outlay for the expansion clubs to nearly $6,000,000 as compared to the $2.1-$2.2 million paid by new clubs in earlier expansion.

SOME OF PROBLEMS

Announcement of the National League's decision to add two clubs no later than 1971 was surprising because Warren Giles, league president, had indicated he did not expect any definite timetable to be set at this meeting.

If one major league operated with 12 clubs and the other with 10 there would be many awkward complications, especially if the American League splits into two divisions as expected with a championship playoff after the regular season.

The starting date of the World Series, possible domination of publicity and television coverage by one league in the final week of the season, inequality in the free agent player draft and probably difference in the number of games in the schedule all would provide headaches.

The conditions under which the Seattle franchise will become active include passage of a $40 million bond issue, Feb. 13, interim stadium facilities acceptable to the league and start of construction of a new permanent stadium no later than Dec. 31, 1970.

According to Max Soriano, brother of Dewey Soriano and president of Pacific Northwest Sports, Inc., official name of the franchise group, the present 11,000-seat Sick Stadium can be expanded to 30,000 seats until the new stadium is ready. The Seattle club of the Pacific Coast League will continue to play in Sick Stadium in 1968, as a farm of the California Angels.

Dewey Soriano said he would notify the Pacific Coast League within 90 days that he would be stepping out as president.

Winless Jayvees Host IGA Grocers

The situation remains unchanged this weekend for Victoria's entries in the Inter-City Junior Men's Basketball League.

Chinooks are trying to take over first place while University of Victoria Jayvees seek their first win in inter-city competition.

That win for Jayvees would also be a big help for Chinooks as the students play hosts to IGA Grocers, who are currently tied for second place with Chinooks, two points behind leading CVO Saints, Chinooks' opposition on the mainland.

Each pair meet twice with games at Gordon Head Campus tonight at 8:30 p.m. and Sunday at 1:30 p.m.

Don Redmond of IGA leads the individual points standings with 159, two more than teammate Steve Woods. Don Getely of Grocers is third with 151.

Chinooks Ollie Moilanen leads in average per game, hitting 12.7 points in the 11 games he has played.

Tom Hatcher is the University of Victoria leader with 113 points for an 11.3 average, fifth best in the league.

Helmets, Cleats Blamed for Injuries

OTTAWA (CP)—Softer helmets and removal of cleats from football shoes were advocated Friday as two effective methods to reduce injury hazards in football.

Dr. Richard Schneider, professor of neurosurgery at University of Michigan Medical School, told a symposium on sports medicine that plastic helmets now in use are too firm and too rigid. In some cases they can contribute to brain injuries.

Dr. Daniel Hanley of Brunswick, Me., said removal of only the two cleats on the heel of football shoes would produce an impressive reduction in knee injuries.

Dr. Hanley noted that a third of all football injuries requiring medical attention involve knees or ankles and could be reduced by improved equipment.

A study had shown that 23 per cent of all knee injuries took place when there was no actual body contact on the play—the same number that occurred in pileups of players. Dr. Hanley blamed "conical" football cleats for many injuries because they held the foot firm when the knee was twisted.

Cars Corrected

General Motors dealer in Victoria, Morrison Motors Ltd., held up sale this week of three 1968 model Corvettes cars to correct possible chafing between a front-wheel brake line and a fender skirt.

Morrison Motors service manager David Ewing said three of the cars brought into Victoria were given the adjustments before they went into operation. "It was about five minutes' work on each car," Mr. Ewing said. The company also held up safety.

At Oshawa, Ont., General Motors of Canada has recalled 137 of its 1968-model cars, a company spokesman said Friday.

In Detroit, Chrysler Corp. said Friday it has recalled more than 8,000 cars for inspection by dealers for possible defects, all of them 1968 models.

The Public Utilities Commission in Kingston, Ont. Friday ordered an inspection of all city bus tires and the removal of any defective ones.

The Chevrolet division of GM in Detroit is asking the owners of 2,857 cars to return them to their dealers for correction of various defects which could affect the cars' safety.

Elsewhere:

Twenty-six of the cars were recalled in other parts of Canada for the same cause.

During Study Spinal Action Shelved

TORONTO (CP) — A spokesman at Toronto General Hospital said Friday Dr. Gordon Murray has agreed not to perform experimental operations on paraplegics at the hospital until a study has been completed into his controversial spinal surgery.

The spokesman said Dr. Murray, who set off a medical controversy with an announcement last month that he had found a way to repair a severed spinal cord in humans, will continue as a surgeon on the hospital staff with complete freedom to operate and care for his patients for all other purposes.

Experimental operations on humans at the hospital have to be approved by a committee of the University of Toronto research board. The committee was established last year to protect patients and has jurisdiction in the experimental use of drugs as well as surgery.

The spokesman said that until Dr. Murray made his announcement, the hospital and committee were unaware that he had been experimenting on humans. He had since agreed to limit his treatment to "ordinary, known techniques."

Dr. Murray, 73, could not be reached for comment.

Pink Pussy Must Acclimatize

SAIGON (Reuters) — The owners of bars, restaurants, and "massage parlors" catering to U.S. soldiers and bearing names like Pink Pussy, Crazy Cow and Golden Hands are trying to work out Vietnamese translations of their establishments' names.

Municipal authorities announced that all signs and advertisements for stores, restaurants, and commercial enterprises must be written in Vietnamese, the official Vietnam press agency reported.

Foreign installations with names which are untranslatable into Vietnamese, the announcement added, can keep their former names but must add new Vietnamese names on the signboard.

The announcement said that restaurants, hotels, bars, snack-bars, and steam-bath houses are "not allowed to use colored neon lights on their signboards but only white lights."

Bawdy House Trial

Police Guard Blonde

VANCOUVER (CP) — An attractive blonde prostitute testified Thursday that a house where she worked closed for one day after a telephone call from a city police detective.

The 27-year-old woman was testifying at the trial of Marie Mimi Forgette, charged with keeping a bawdy house.

The prostitute said the call was made by Robert Millman to Mrs. Forgette whom she identified as the operator of the house.

Millman, 51, a 20-year veteran of the police force, and another man are charged with being found in Victoria Leachin, 23, is charged with being an inmate of the house.

The crown witness, whose name is being kept secret because she says her life has been threatened, testified she worked at a Vancouver bawdy house for 4½ months.

The witness, who is being kept in protective custody, declined to give information about her background because "people are trying to kill me."

Crown prosecutor S. C. Madigan said "we are concerned for her safety. She has been threatened."

The woman testified she came to Vancouver from Montreal after a man told her to do so. She said she paid Mrs. Forgette $10 a week rent. About 10 to 15 men visited the house each day.

The woman refused to give personal information when she was cross-examined by defence counsel Tom Braidwood.

She said she was afraid and "must protect my family." The woman said she used a new name in every city she visited.

"It was something I was taught to do," she said. "All a prostitute has to do is to take orders."

She said on her first day at the house she made $200 but "I usually make about $550 a week. The woman said she mailed the money to a man in Montreal.

"I didn't get anything out of it except clothing and medical bills paid for. I didn't get any money out of it only hair-dos and clothes and staying alive."

Asked by Mr. Braidwood why she was giving evidence, she replied "the more that comes out in court, the longer I'm going to stay alive. I've been threatened about giving evidence."

The woman said she came here recently from Alberta where she had given evidence in a similar case. She said she was due to give evidence in another case there in the near future.

The case continues.

Joan Woolison Weds David Skillings

At a choral service in St. Luke's Anglican Church Friday evening, marriage vows were exchanged by Joan Marion, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom H. Woolison, and Charles David Skillings, son of Mr. and Mrs. Waldo Skillings.

Archdeacon C. E. F. Wolff officiated at the ceremony, and was assisted by Dean Brian Whitlow. Tall standards of white chrysanthemums stood at either side of the altar.

As the bride entered the church to be given in marriage by her father, she was preceded by choir boys singing Lead Us Heavenly Father, Lead Us.

For her wedding the bride wore heavy white satin brocade gown, fashioned with a slight A-line, and sweeping into a graceful train. Her Cathedral veil was held by a floral headpiece of matching brocade and as she entered the church she wore a small veil over her face, later turned back after the service. Her cascade bouquet was of white roses with feathered chrysanthemums.

Her sister, Mrs. Glen Hale, was matron of honor and her cousin, Miss Patricia Horne, came from San Francisco to attend as bridesmaid. Both wore dresses of gold brocade, similar to the bride's gown, with floral headpieces of the same material. Their flowers were white feathered chrysanthemums with gold-sprayed leaves.

Ushers were Mr. Waldo Skillings Jr. and Mr. Hugh Skillings of Vancouver. Mr. J. D. Horne proposed the toast to his niece at a reception at Uplands Golf Club following the ceremony. The bride's going-away costume was an Italian knit, strawberry pink coat over a white knit dress with a white hat and patent accessories. This morning, the couple are leaving on the Orsova for Honolulu, where they will spend their honeymoon before returning to Victoria. They will live at 52 Moss Street.

Lake Tahoe Honeymoon

At a candlelit service in Esquimalt United Church on Friday evening Miss Jill Mauden Atkinson became the bride of Mr. Gordon James Pengelly.

Rev. H. B. Ilsey officiated at the ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Atkinson and the son of Capt. and Mrs. Garfield Pengelly, 2206 Woodhouse Road.

During the signing of the register, Miss Dena Noble, accompanied by Mrs. R. Wanless, sang More.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in her wedding gown of beau de fallu styled with portrait neckline. Chantilly lace encircled the fitted waistline, elbow length sleeves and softly flared skirt. A full detachable train swept from the waistline and a floral headpiece held her four-tiered scalloped veil. Her bouquet was of white gladiolus centred with red roses and accented with ivy.

Miss Sandra Smith was maid of honor and the Misses Colleen De Costa and Beth Wetherdon were bridesmaids.

They wore knee-length dresses of red beau de elegance styled with flared inverted pleat and matching jackets curved low at the back. They carried bouquets of white crystal chrysanthemums and ivy and their Grecian hairstyles were interwoven with white velvet.

The little flower girl, Lisa McCulloch, wore a dress of white flannel nylon accented by a sash of red beau de elegance and carried a basket of red roses and spray chrysanthemums.

Mr. Norman Jackson, was best man and ushering guests to the pews were Mr. Richard Atkinson brother of the bride, Mr. Thomas Pengelly, brother of the groom, and Mrs. Wayne Lundgren.

The reception was held at Holyrood House where the bride's table was centred with a three-tiered cake flanked by crystal candelabra and surrounded by green velvet holly under white tulle. Mr. E. R. Oakman proposed the toast of white gladiolus centred with red roses and accented with ivy.

Leaving to spend a honeymoon at Lake Tahoe, Nevada, the bride wore a blue wool crepe slightly A-lined dress topped by a double-breasted coat of lime and blue hounds tooth with matching pillbox, black patent accessories and corsage of a white orchid.

ANN LANDERS

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Why, of why, would a woman hang on to a man who doesn't want her? Greg has told me he loves me more than anything in the world. He says his wife means nothing to him and they have lived as brother and sister for three years. I believe him. He claims if it weren't for his children he would have left her years ago, even if he had not met me.

I've written registered letters to his wife. I've sent her telegrams. No response. I've called her on the telephone and her stock answer is: "I have nothing to say to you. Talk to Greg." Then she hangs up. She is a selfish, unfeeling woman who is clinging to the man I love just because she doesn't want us to be happy. Greg has told me repeatedly that he will marry me when the time is right.

Ann, I want to go to her home and talk to her in person. Then she will HAVE to listen to me. I've been going with Greg for three years and I'm sick and tired of waiting. Please tell me I'm right in wanting to get it settled NOW. — RSVP

Dear R.: Your story is such a tired one I'm almost ashamed to print it. You are not only wrong but stupid if you think a talk with Greg's wife will settle anything. Your problem is not with her — it's with him, Dummy. Greg doesn't want to marry you — and why should he? He has everything just the way he wants it — the respectable facade provided by a home and children plus a side dish for entertainment. This arrangement is a lot neater and much cheaper for him than a divorce.

Let a lady shift for herself?

NEVER!

We agree with Datsun. You have enough to do gathering in the groceries and keeping the kiddies tucked quietly into their seat belts, without having to change gears as well.

That's why we're pleased to offer this Datsun 1600 Automatic. Into its budget price, it packs more features to gladden your feminine heart than any car we've ever known.

It's really smart. Nice lines. Lovely colours. The steering is light and positive. (You can park it in a teacup.) It has a full-flow air circulation system that works with the windows closed. The car never gets stuffy and your hairdo never blows away. On cold days, the heater quickly clears all the windows to give you excellent vision.

For safety, there's an impact absorbing body, brakes borrowed from the best racing cars, back-up lights and, because children often ride in the rear seat, Datsun padded the backs of the front seats too.

The ride is velvet. All wheels are independently sprung. Also Datsun hinged the rear axle in the middle so that both wheels stay on the ground when you take a corner. You'll have new confidence when the roads are icy or rain-slicked.

But, best of all the Datsun 1600 isn't one of those timid small car automatics with no go. It has a big 98 h.p. engine that will cruise you at twenty in traffic or move you at better than ninety miles an hour. It's smooth and zippy in every gear.

Oh, and one more thing. Expect one hundred thousand mile reliability. That's been built-in too.

Drive at Datsun — then decide!

King Fisherman Contest Winners Honored Prize Day for 47 Anglers

Forty-seven fishing enthusiasts gathered in the Dominion Hotel banquet room Friday for the presentations of 1967 awards in The Daily Colonist King Fisherman Contest. In the six months between April 29 and Oct. 29, there were 24,353 entries, second-largest number in the contest's 13-year history. The largest was 34,096 entries in 1963. Lucky winners in the contest were picked by Mayor Stephen early in November. Largest fish was a 67-pound tyee caught Aug. 16 near Campbell River by Joe Laplant of Campbell River. Peter Rheinholdt, 295 Trunk Road in Duncan, won a top award for a 35-pound spring salmon he caught in Becher Bay. Chairman of the banquet was Colonist publisher Richard Bower.

Winners and sponsors are, from left, rear, Peter Rheinholdt, 15, of Duncan, winner of King Fisherman Contest Fish of Year award; Jim Mutch and Jim McKeachie, both of Canadian Pacific Airlines, sponsor of all-expense-paid trip for two to Mexico; Neil Piggott, 15, of Metchosin Road, who caught six-pound coho drawn on Jeune Bros. King Kamper trailer-tent unit; Colonist publisher Richard Bower; Alf Stringer of Vancouver Island Helicopters, sponsor of trip for two to wilderness spot; front, Pat and Kingston Smith, winners of big CPA trip to Mexico; Wanda Cairns, winner of Elizabeth Arden fitted cosmetic case from Eatons, and Bert Humphries, who will take helicopter trip.

Ronald Holmes of Imperial Oil, who presented the $100 Imperial Esso Prize to Joe Gillings for the six-pound bass he caught in Elk Lake.

Labor Backs Butchers, Strike Notice Served

The Amalgamated Meatcutters Union drew strong support from the ranks of Lower Mainland labor Friday in its bid for higher pay, shorter hours and fringe benefits.

Union representative George Johnston of Vancouver told The Colonist the union has agreed to hold off any strike action until after negotiations scheduled for Monday morning with the management of High-Low stores, the only company so far served with the statutory 48-hour strike notice.

TWO MEETINGS

Mr. Johnston said union representatives had attended two meetings Friday, one arranged by the B.C. Federation of Labor and one by the Teamsters' Union.

At the first meeting, representatives from the Retail Clerks, Retail Wholesale and Department Store, United Packinghouse, and the Bakery Workers unions had all pledged their support to the meatcutters.

FOOD TRUCKERS

At the second meeting, milk and bread salesmen, highway meat haulers, general truckers, frozen food truckers and other Teamster Union members serving the supermarkets also agreed to support the meatcutters.

Chronologically, Mr. Johnston said, the union had served the High-Low operation in Coquitlam with 48-hour strike notice Thursday; had received 48-hour notice from the supermarket management of intention to lock out; government conciliation officer George Carmichael called the union to say the High-Low management was ready to negotiate.

SIX CHAINS

The union represents 667 meatcutters in six store chains on the Lower Mainland and in Victoria — High-Low, Safeway, Shop Easy, Super-Vu, Loblaw and Dominion — about 70 of them in 15 stores in Victoria.

The union is seeking a $1 an hour increase in pay on a one-year contract and a four-day, 36-hour work week.

The union earlier rejected the majority report of a conciliation board which offered 20 cents an hour increase in each year of a two-year contract.

Dresses Stolen

Five dresses and two pant suits were reported stolen from Elegant Knitwear Ltd., 218 Menzies overnight Wednesday. Thieves forced the rear door to steal the clothing, valued at $200.

Separatism Blast

Johnson Bets On Canada

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Daniel Johnson Friday spoke out against separatism, said President de Gaulle doesn't consult him on public statements and confirmed plans for a joint meeting of French and Quebec cabinet ministers.

The premier criticized separatists in news conferences at Montreal and on his arrival here from the Confederation of Tomorrow conference at Toronto where he made what he calls "a bet on Canada."

At Montreal, Mr. Johnson said the Quebec government was not consulted before the French president forecast at a Paris press conference that the province will be elevated to the ranks of a sovereign state.

At Quebec City, the premier said declarations by General de Gaulle should not be interpreted as support for any political doctrine, including the sovereign state thesis of former Quebec cabinet minister Rene Levesque.

The premier said the co-operation of France is needed by Quebec no matter what kind of constitutional system under which French Canadians live, and cannot be linked to any particular doctrines.

Meeting in Paris

He said Quebec and French cabinet ministers will meet in Paris early in 1968 to discuss the rapidly developing France-Quebec educational and cultural agreements. In Montreal, he criticized the sovereign state proposal of former Liberal Rene Levesque as "a great risk" for the mass of the people in the province.

Mr. Johnson said separatism arises basically from dissatisfaction with the existing constitution which does not provide French-Canadians a linguistic equality with English-Canadians across Canada.

He said separatism might not affect doctors, dentists and lawyers for example because "they have a captive clientele" but this is not the same for such people as factory workers and farmers.

He said he sensed "a terrible responsibility" as spokesman for French-Canadians at the Toronto discussions.

He described the constitutional talks as a break-through in dialogue between French and English-Canadians and only the beginning of discussions he hoped will lead to a new constitution.

Armed Forces Chaplains

Forest Service Inspires Graduates

By DON GAIN

Delisle

An ecumenical church service in an unnamed corner of a Vancouver Island forest. Six days of foot-slogging through soggy bushland near Duncan. Three months of Christian fellowship.

These are some of the memories that 17 chaplains of the Canadian armed forces are taking home with them today after their indoctrination course at Venture division of the Fleet School in Esquimalt.

Their passing-out parade was held Friday and today they are home or on their way.

The chaplains represent the Roman Catholic, Anglican, Baptist, Lutheran, Presbyterian and United Churches and all three services of the armed forces.

They still wear their respective uniforms and there is as yet no date set on when they will switch to the new green ones, according to Air Commodore J. P. Davignon, Chaplain General (RC), who came from Ottawa for graduation exercises.

The air commodore was wearing his new green uniform.

Also in Victoria for the parade were Bishop Francis Spence, auxiliary to the military vicar of Canada (Maurice Cardinal Roy) and Charles MacLean, Deputy Chaplain General both of Ottawa, and Group Capt. Raoul Poirier, Command Chaplain (RC) of Training Command in Winnipeg.

STIMULATING PART

Adventers to the course in Esquimalt are Pacific Command chaplains Gordon Faraday (P) and Regie Pelletier (RC).

The most stimulating part of the course, according to Lt. Lieut. Allan Stack of Montreal, was the bush expedition.

"We operated out of a base camp," he said, "trekked miles through the bush, carrying 50-lb. packs and had to fend for ourselves. It rained most of the time."

THREE YEARS

"We really got to know each other," said Capt. Colin Curties, who also comes from Montreal.

He said that all of the chaplains are ordained ministers with a minimum of three years' experience.

"The purpose of the course was to orient us as chaplains within the service, to give us an insight into the life of any officer and the type of environment in which the people we will be working with, live."

ARMY CAMP

He spoke of visits to the army camp at Chilliwack, the RCAF station at Comox, a sea voyage on the destroyer-escort HMCS Saskatchewan.

"When we leave here," said Lt. Lieut. Stack, "we know 16 chaplains intimately. That is 10 per cent of the chaplaincy force and it is important in our work that we know them."

HIGH PRAISE

They had high praise for the course director, Major Edmund Adkin, who took up supervisory duties at Venture in August.

"He did an excellent job," said Capt. Curties. "He was very understanding and considerate. And it wasn't easy, integrating three service environments."

BROADENING ASPECT

"It's a very broadening aspect," he added.

As Capt. Foster Jenkins of Picton, N.S., returned to his room at Naden the last day of the course, a lusty voice could be heard resounding in the corridors.

One of the chaplains was singing at the top of his lungs, "Jesus calls us over the tumult."

He smiled.

"Somebody's glad the course is over," he said.

'Money Was His God'

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — For 25 years, Leopold Steinbock lived at the Union Gospel Mission, surviving on "pennies a day" among the city's poverty stricken.

He died Nov. 17 at age 88, apparently friendless and virtually penniless.

Officials prepared for a pauper's burial, then discovered letters and bank receipts indicating Steinbock had about $50,000.

"Money was his God," said Rev. Paul Campbell, director of the mission, who said he was unaware of Steinbock's wealth.

Ex-Footballer To Assist Church Camps

Tackling a big job on the eve of Grey Cup Day is nothing new for Bill Briggs.

He's done a lot of Grey Cup tackling during 15 years of Canadian professional football. As defensive linebacker with the Toronto Argonauts, Bill played in seven Grey Cup games, and his team won six of those encounters.

NEW POSITION

But there's a difference this year. In Canadian Memorial Church in Vancouver, Bill was formally inducted Friday as camping secretary for the B.C. conference of the United Church of Canada.

He is the first person to hold such a position within the B.C. church and his appointment reflects the growing popularity of church camping.

FRINGLE HERE

His new duties will involve him with 13 different campsites in the province with a combined potential for some 3,500 campers each summer. Victoria Presbytery's camp is George Fringle Memorial Camp at Shawnigan Lake.

Mr. Briggs' main role will be as a training resource, brainstorming with camp committees and equipping trainers and camp directors to do their jobs more effectively.

OLD IDEA

"There are exciting new developments in the camping area," he says. "The idea that camping is for kids is on the way out, to be replaced with an emphasis on persons as such, regardless of their ages. Christian camping ought to be a person-oriented rather than program-oriented and this is one of the distinctive features of Christian camping at its best."

ORDAINED MINISTER

Mr. Briggs, an ordained United Church minister with three pastorate and a period as a conference Christian education secretary behind him, is excited about the possibilities of his new job.

"The only flaw in the arrangements," he says, "was the fact that they were originally going to induct me into this position on Grey Cup Day. Fortunately, I was able to talk them out of that."

Appeal Opens Today

Adventists Aid 200 Countries

Victoria Seventh-day Adventists begin their 64th annual World Service Appeal today.

Volunteers from the local congregation will visit Victoria homes during the next few weeks to solicit funds for medical, welfare and educational services in 200 countries, including Canada.

The church helped 10,000,000 persons last year and contributed $12,411,000 in cash and food.

In addition to welfare activities, the church operates 136 hospitals and 167 clinics, treating nearly 4,000,000 persons annually. The church also supports its own school system with an enrolment of 370,000 students and publishes Christian literature in 228 languages.

The World Service Appeal has been aiding in welfare, disaster relief, education, medical and missionary work in 200 countries since 1903.

In Victoria, the goal is $4,600. Money contributed is divided between local needs and other services such as clinics, dispensaries, leper colonies and mission schools.

In Canada last year 61,000 persons were helped, 197,000 pieces of clothing were distributed and $568,000 was spent in relief.

War Veteran

First United Names Visiting Minister

Rev. Benson Summers has become visiting minister at First United Church.

Mr. Summers, who won the Military Medal at Passchendaele in the First World War, has had a long career in Saskatchewan. After serving in various ministries, he became secretary of the Bible Society in Southern Saskatchewan in 1942.

He retired in 1957 but continued his ministry as assistant pastor at Knox United in Saskatoon.

He and Mrs. Summers moved to Victoria this fall and now live at 777 Cook Street.

Blessing Friday

Queenswood House of Studies will be blessed at 7 p.m. Friday by Bishop Remi De Roo, and the public will be welcome at the service.

Clergyman Fulfills Lifetime Ambition

One of the chaplains who finished his indoctrination course at Venture Friday is Raymond Delisle of Quebec City.

He will be attached to CFB Esquimalt and his charges will be residents of the married quarters at Belmont Park.

Father Delisle was born at St. The near Shawinigan Falls, Que., and was educated at College Notre Dame in Ayer's Cliff and at the University of Ottawa.

He was ordained in 1962 in the religious order of Servites and worked as a physical training teacher at College Notre Dame for three years.

"I always wanted to do two things," he said, "enter the priesthood and join the armed forces. First I became a priest and now I'm in the service."

Father Delisle has been with the naval reserve for six years and has spent summers at both Atlantic and Pacific Command.

He joined the permanent force Sept. 1 and started the chaplain course at once.

He'll be celebrating mass in Our Lady, Star of the sea Chapel at Belmont Park, and getting to know the families. In his spare time, he said, he'd like to start a judo club.

He's played every sport but curling.

Many Marking First Advent Sunday

In City Churches

This Sunday is the first Sunday in Advent and will be celebrated in many Victoria churches. It is the season of preparation for Christmas and also for the second coming to judge the world.

Three Victoria churches will join in celebrating the day which is considered the Christians' New Year's Day.

The congregations of St. John's Anglican and First Baptist Churches will worship in the First United Church at 7 p.m. Choirs of St. John's, First Baptist and First United will sing. Canon Grahame Baker will share in the conduct of the service.

Rev. John Watson of First Baptist Church will give the sermon on A Place to Stand. The service will be broadcast over CKDA. A social hour will follow the service.

Was There, a J. No. Fire, by Lehman. Rev. H. W. Kerley will preach on The Master's Footsteps in the morning. His evening topic will be Advent 67.

The subject of the lesson- sermon in First Church of Christ Scientist will be God the Only Cause and Creator. The responsive reading includes this verse from Isaiah: "Lift up your eyes on high and behold who hath created these things, that bringeth out their host by number; he called them all by names by the greatness of his might, for that he is strong in power: not one faileth."

The Indisputable Sovereignty of God will be the subject at the 11 a.m. service in Central Baptist Church. Rev. W. O. McKee will preach. At 7 p.m. he will take as his topic Consummate Folly. The ordinance of the Lord's Supper will be held following the evening service.

Complete satisfaction is the fruit of godliness. The Christian in Christ and Christ in the Christian is the only power by which man can keep this law.

Rev. Norman Archer will give a sermon on the tenth commandment, Thou Shalt Not Covet, at 11 a.m. in Emmanuel Baptist Church, under the title God and Greed.

"Greed has ever been one of the most destructive forces of humanity," Mr. Archer says. "Gold cannot cure avarice. It cannot even satisfy it. It only destroys."

"But if man covets God with all his nature, there will be no room nor even desire for more."

Contentment was discovered by Paul the Apostle, when he said, "I have learned in whatsoever state I am, therewith to be content."

Mr. Archer's topic at the 9:30 a.m. family service will be The Good Shepherd.

The Fifth Order Hill Scout group will parade to the morning service at St. Aidan's United Church. This group consists of two Cub packs, two Scout troops and a Rover crew. Dr. Roy Watson will be soloist. Rev. A. G. MacLeod will speak on some of the aspects of the Scout program.

At the evening worship the City-Wide OGIIT vespers service will be held. This service, with both traditional and modern Christmas Carols, will be on a contemporary theme, putting the Christmas story into modern form. Representatives of the Guides and the Junior auxiliary will be special guests.

Micksch family works on wreath

—William H. John

Symbol of Eternity

No Beginning, End

Peter and Renate Micksch — a young German couple now living in Victoria — are establishing a tradition of making Advent wreaths for their church and friends.

One of their wreaths will be used in Metropolitan United Church Sunday in the service for the beginning of Advent.

"I've always liked working with flowers and plants," Mrs. Micksch said this week. "and I studied in Germany with several florists before coming to Canada."

She and her sister Brigitta came to Canada for a year about eight years ago and they've never been back.

She met her husband in Victoria. Her sister is married to a friend of her husband's and they live in Vancouver.

Mrs. Micksch was born in Dortmund, her husband in Hamburg. But she spent most of her life in Soest, which is well known to Canadians serving in Germany.

Her sister was working in a hotel in Lausanne, Switzerland, when she made the acquaintance of a Victoria couple who told her of the beauties of Victoria.

"That's how we happened to come here," she said. "Now I don't want to live anywhere else."

She told the story of the Advent wreath — evergreen boughs to symbolize God's gift of life and growth and life to come. Without beginning or end, it symbolizes God's eternity.

The candles symbolize the ages sitting in darkness awaiting the coming of Christ, the long-expected King and Deliverer from darkness.

The Mickschs have two little helpers now who are having a lot of fun if their wreath-making skills are not yet developed. They are Stefanie, 5, and Annette, 3.

The first candle on the Advent wreath in Metropolitan Church will be lit at the 11 a.m. service by a member of the youth groups. Rev. Albert King will preach on Expectant Waiting.

In the evening, the eighth and final program on Canada's provinces will be given. It will be British Columbia Night and Rev. Robert Moses will present. Five short films will be shown in the assembly hall after the service — Kootenay Lakes, People of the Skeena, East One — West One, Transcanada B.C. and Alaska Cruise.

The Forgotten Family will be Gordon Wright's topic at 9:30 and 11 a.m. in The Unitarian Church of Victoria. Mr. Wright has been executive director of the Family and Children's Service since 1962. He is president of the B.C. Association of Social Workers.

Dr. Emma Smiley has chosen for her 11 a.m. sermon the topic Is Faith Healing True? At 7:30 p.m. she will discuss An Agnostic's Quest.

There will be two Wednesday evening meetings in December at which the fundamentals of the spiritual world will be discussed, next Wednesday and Dec. 13. The Prosperity Meeting will be held at 3 p.m. Thursday, followed by tea. Tuesday afternoon healing meetings will be held at 3 p.m.

Soloist at both Sunday services in Fairfield United Church is Miss Carro Baird. Her solo in the morning will be No Candle

Bishop To Open House

Bishop Remi J. De Roo will officially open the Queenswood House of Studies on Friday, Dec. 8 at 7 p.m.

The House will be for educational studies, both religious and professional for the Sisters of St. Ann.

Open House will be held on Dec. 9 and 10 between the hours of 2 to 4 and 8 to 10 p.m.

Loans Granted For Housing

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal loans totalling $1,900,000 have been approved for projects in Vancouver to provide housing for elderly and low-income persons and a foster home for children, Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. has announced.

Garden Notes

Yucca Status Plant

By M. V. CHESNUT

One way of achieving some distinction in the front garden is to plant out a specimen of some unusual tropical, exotic or desert plant where it can catch the eye of passers-by. Pampas Grass from the Argentine, with its dramatic silvery plumes, is often used in this way, and is a good example of what I mean. Another subject often used for this purpose is Dracaena, a palm-like plant particularly good when used as a centerpiece in a bed of dwarf bedding geraniums.

Another plant of distinction, not so commonly grown hereabouts, is the Yucca, a desert plant from Arizona and New Mexico. While it is actually a member of the lily family, the Yucca is a rather remarkable evergreen shrub, although it grows in much the same way and under the same conditions as the better-known Pampas Grass. From rosettes of narrow, long, tough, spined leaves there arises a tall spike of cream-colored, pendant, bell-shaped flowers, three to six feet in height, providing a bold yet pleasing accent of character in any garden.

From its sub-tropical appearance, an impression is created that the Yucca would not be reliably hardy in our northern latitudes, yet I have seen it thriving happily in places like Flin Flon, Man., and Swift Current, Sask., where winter temperatures drop to 35 below zero for weeks on end. Cold has no terrors for this tough, leathery plant, and the only casualties I have encountered in our climate have been due to wet ground; as a desert dweller in nature, it cannot tolerate a site where puddles stand over its roots during the winter rains.

Don't be put off by old wives' tales, of the Yucca flowering only once in every seven years — these are simply not true. A small nursery-grown plant may take two or three years before blooming, but once it reaches sexual maturity it should bloom unfailingly every season.

Several varieties are available. Yucca gloriosa, often called Adam's Needle, is one of the most tolerant kinds, and the creamy white bell flowers are packed close together in a narrow, conical, erect spike on a three-foot stem, usually blooming from July into September.

Somewhat less stiff in foliage and with a looser and more branching flower stem is Y. recurvifolia, harder than gloriosa and coming into bloom even earlier in life. Both these varieties make short, stubby, thick stems as the plants grow older, but a slender plant, Y. filamentosa, develops short side growths and no "trunk" or main stem. From near the ground it pushes up erect spikes four to six feet tall covered with cream or pale yellow flowers in July and August.

A fourth member of the family is Yucca flaccida "Ivory," in which the flowers, with their pointed petals, stand out horizontally from the blossom spike rather than drooping, in much the same manner as a well-grown spike of Foxglove, but with the tropical-looking, cactus-like rosette of foliage below.

In the desert resorts of the south-west, Yuccas are often featured and grown in massed groupings, but I think that for our gardens they are most effective placed singly as a point of accent, possibly in the front lawn, in the centre of a flatish bed of annuals, or at a crown point in a fairly large rock garden.

The plant needs a dryish, sun-baked site and well-drained sandy loam soil in which to root. April is a good month to plant, and most kinds will start blooming in their second summer after planting.

ERMA BOMBECK Draws a Parallel

There are some naive people in this world who think a cold is cold. Nothing could be further from the truth. There are men's colds and there are women's colds.

A woman's cold is always her own fault. She asked for it. She brought in the milk on a cold day. She drove the kids to school in her nightgown. She stood at the door during sub-zero temperatures warding off an encyclopedia salesman.

She slept with a sick child and foolishly breathed. She loaned her boots to daughter. She worked an 18-hour day and purposely let herself get run-down and literally begged to be stricken.

A woman with a cold goes as much sympathy as a drowning man who refuses to unfatten his woman belt and be saved.

Treatment of a woman's cold varies, of course. The standard procedure, however, is to walk it to death. As long as you dress and keep on your feet, you will still have control over it.

Some women use a cold as a wonderful excuse to clean out the medicine chest. They take a few baby aspirin, the last squirt of a nasal spray, a few unlabelled red pills (later discovered to be for diarrhea), a sample jar of chest rub, and top it off with a few capsules left over from pregnancy. (you never know when a cold will cause your ankles to swell.)

The length of a woman's cold varies, but usually hangs on until the last child is in school.

A man's cold is quite another story. His cold is the work of communist infiltrators who conduct germ warfare in an effort to bring successful capitalists to their knees and weaken democracy.

The first sniff carries with it all the drama of Julius Caesar staggering around the senate.

Children scatter, the bird flaps excitedly in the cage, mother hurries back and forth with chicken broth and appropriate quotations from the Bible, the dog hovers nearby with his tail between his legs and a doctor is summoned faster than you can say, "Where do you want the TV set, Ralph?"

Men's colds respond to only one kind of treatment: complete bed rest, quiet and compassion. Never... repeat... never try to talk him out of his malady. A small innocent remark such as, "Your cold sounds a little better today," could result in a complete relapse.

The length of a man's cold likewise varies, but it has been proved in test after test that the day of resurrection occurs the day he checks in at his office by phone and his secretary says, "Who?"

Unusual Movie Makes You Think

By SHEILAH GRAHAM

NEW YORK (NANA) — You'd never guess from the title, There Goes What's 'n Name, that it's a thinking man's film. Oliver Reed of The Jokers, Cathy White of Poor Cow, and Orson Welles of the world are stars. After viewing it, I was thinking so hard that my head was splitting.

To find out what it was all about I lunched with the director, Michael Winner. He directed The Jokers and is one of the new breed of Britishers who are in the screen today what Picasso and Chagall have been to the art world of the past 40 years.

"I was aiming to show," said Winner, "that you can't opt out of life. You've got to fight in the area where you live. You can't go around the corner. The life you've got, is the life you've got." See what I mean about thinking? "The people who are dissatisfied, who say I'd rather be a painter, well, they never are," he continued.

In the film, Oliver Reed is a very successful advertising executive. He wants to be cleansed of the horror of the British equivalent of Madison Avenue and returns to his first love, book publishing, in a small, unprosperous way, with a wife and three mistresses to cushion the shock.

In trying to recapture his innocence he goes back to Cambridge. I liked this part best because the views of the great university, founded in the 13th century are sheer delight. All the cruel hazing, verging on murder, is relieved. "It happened to me," said Winner who is a Cambridge graduate. "They were quite nice people when sober, but drunk they came around at night and were terrifying."

"In this era of affluence, you have an increasingly standardized society. More and more people find it impossible to fit into it. So you have hippies, flower people. They don't have to work so hard. They expect to be happier, but these things don't make them happy, so they turn to drugs."

From all of this to William the Conqueror is quite a few centuries, but this $10,000,000 movie for Universal is next on Winner's schedule. "I desperately wanted to do an historical subject on a big canvas. But it's not as different as you think. It's about two most modern men, William and Harold. They were both inventors, cunning, ambitious; both broke all the rules. They enjoyed themselves. William was 38 when he fought Harold at Hastings, but they had known each other 20 years earlier."

Who will play them, I wanted to know. "Not established stars," said the director decisively. "I don't want Charlton Heston or John Wayne. In life they were blood Vikings although William had a red beard. The 11th century was primitive, the dark ages, but interesting with beautiful tapestries decorating wooden huts."

"William" will be Winner's fourth film. The first, West 11, which cost $300,000 was about "a bed-sitter's life" (someone poor, living and sleeping in one miserable room). Second, The System, which over here was called The Girl Getters and featured several unknowns who are now quite known — Oliver Reed, David Hemmings, Barbara (There's a Girl in my Soup), Ferris and Julie (Alfie) Fester.

"They all got their first chance with me," said Michael. "It was about a group of boys in a seaside town, organized to make their points in sex as they couldn't in money. Five years ago I tested Julie Andrews for West 11. They said she was a B actress and I turned her down."

After William the Conqueror, Winner directs Hannibal Brooks. He is 31 years old, began as a "tea" boy in television before graduating to TV commercials and television shows. The Jokers made him an important film director.

It the Communists could have had the power to decide what the U.S. would do, they could not have composed a more agreeable (to them) disintegration.

For 1968, U.S. defence costs are estimated at $75,000,000 — about a third of that earmarked specifically for Vietnam. At the same time, public health gets less than $5,000,000,000, education less than $5,000,000,000, and housing, urban development and water pollution less than $2,000,000,000.

One can hardly imagine a shrewder scheme to be devised by the masters of the Kremlin — to keep the U.S. fighting an unending and unwinnable war, pouring more and more money and materiel into the quagmire of Vietnam, while the Russians send only the aid they can spare, without endangering either their foreign relations or their domestic policies.

Meanwhile, the U.S. has alienated or neutralized most of its allies, lost the support of world opinion, been forced to engage in devoted double-talk to justify its enlargement of the conflict, and worst of all, has given China all the time it needs to mobilize its resources for some more important confrontation elsewhere.

At the same time, the domestic U.S. scene has been turned into an almost unrelieved canvas of discord, futility, and bitterness. Both political parties are split within themselves on the question of the Vietnam adventure, and can hardly patch up the profound differences before next year's conventions.

The huge investment in this bootless war has forced the U.S. to abandon all pretense of rational priorities for coping with the grievous problems of air and water pollution, crime, inadequate housing, the corrosion of American cities, and the explosive potential of racial antagonism. For all of these require at least as much funds and efforts as are being poured down the Vietnamese rat-hole.

What sweeter plan could the Communists dream up to keep the U.S. fighting abroad and bickering at home, throwing billions into the swamps of Asia while neglecting the sorry state of domestic affairs, raising taxes and curtailing services, as well as outraging the moral sensibilities of millions of American parents who don't want their sons killed in what, a few years later, may be admitted to have been "a strategic miscalculation?"

If there is, as the right-wingers keep insisting, a Communist "plot" to undermine U.S. society, can you conceive a more cunning way to implement it than by keeping the U.S. involved in Vietnam?

Flashing Fashion

New Beatle Apple Has Groovy Taste

LONDON (AP) — The Beatles are going into the far-out fashion business with the opening of a new shop, The Apple, on Baker Street Dec. 7. It's their gift to the people, and they don't expect or want to make any money out of it, says The Fool, an exotic group which is designing the clothes and decor for The Apple.

"We thought it was time somebody did something for the people," Barry Finch, 24, Canadian manager of The Fool, explained. "Any profits will be plowed straight back in to make the clothes even cheaper and to open new branches in all the groovy countries of the world."

London has seen some wild fashions lately, but nothing to equal The Apple. Besides Barry, born in Port Dover, Ont., The Fool consists of three Dutch designers, Simon, 28, Marijke and Josje, both 24. They have been making clothes for The Beatles, Marianne Faithfull, Mike Jagger of The Rolling Stones, The Procol Harum and The Cream of the pop world.

They call it "flashing fashion," and a peacock in full strut couldn't look finer than The Fool and their customers. Velvet frock coats, damask waistcoats, flowing printed trousers, Indian or Egyptian style headgear—all in brilliant colors—are their everyday garb. Even in blase London, they draw stares and whistles.

Until now, these fine feathers have been somewhat expensive and available to only the chosen few.
At The Apple they will sell for between $5 and $10 to "everybody from two on up."

Coffee-Break Cut Bonner Answer To Economic Ills

Canada isn't more than a coffee break away from solving the country's economic ills, Attorney-General Bonner said Friday.

"If we could halve coffee breaks across the country," Mr. Bonner said in an interview, "the productivity increase would be enough to check the problem."

He made the suggestion, the attorney-general said, as a humorous method of pointing up "the very narrow thing between declining productivity and productivity."

Mr. Bonner was commenting on the federal government's mini-budget tax boosts. He said the basic problem facing the nation — decline of productivity and increasing cost of production — remains unchanged.

Without further steps, he said, "this can only produce dizziness in the economy. We can either spin faster and fall down or slow the spiral and restore values to the pay cheques of the nation."

FOR GUIDELINES

He suggested Ottawa and the provinces as well as industry and labor, make a moral commitment to observe guidelines that would keep costs within the limits of increased productivity.

The body charged with responsibility for setting these guidelines, said Mr. Bonner, should be the Economic Council of Canada, which has both the "intellectual capacity" and the "moral force" to make them workable.

Mr. Bonner added: "If we could keep the costs of productivity at their present level, with no increases at all for a period of even two years, we could probably work ourselves out of (current economic difficulties) with no sweat at all."

CAPITAL OUTRAK

Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell attacked the federal government for saying it would cut back on its capital outlays for housing.

"As far as this (B.C.) government is concerned," Mr. Campbell said, "that is the most serious part of the budget."

He suggested Ottawa was leaving housing to "the dictates of the market place" when the money market was "an unstable place for the individual needing housing capital."

Superport Problems Smoothed

After talks with Transport Minister Hellyer in Toronto, Attorney-General Bonner said Friday he foresees no fundamental difficulties in development of a proposed superport at Roberts Bank.

Mr. Bonner said the private talks were "full and frank" as described it as an excellent meeting. But he refused to disclose what stand was taken either on the federal or provincial side. Further meetings will be held.

B.C. earlier had criticized superport development proposal outlined by Mr. Hellyer claiming the pace of development will not meet urgent needs.

Holiday Pay Too Vital; Workers Delay Strike

DETROIT (AP) — Walter Reuther, president of the United Auto Workers union, agreed Friday to hold off any strike against General Motors Corp. until next year.

Reuther emerged from a two-hour meeting with the union's GM Council and told reporters that a decision had been made that would allow some 380,000 UAW-represented workers in the U.S. to draw their Christmas and New Year's holiday pay before they might be called upon to walk off the job.

The UAW leader said Dec. 14 has been set as a "target date" for reaching a new national labor contract with GM, the No. 1 U.S. car-maker.

If no settlement is reached by that date, Reuther said, the union will then set a "strike deadline" for sometime after the Christmas and New Year holidays.

UAW strategy is aimed at obtaining an agreement on national issues by mid-December, thus freeing top union and company negotiators to concentrate on settlement of local disputes early next year.

General Motors is the last of the automotive Big Three to negotiate a new three-year contract with the UAW. The industry pattern for an economic settlement was set in an agreement reached with the Ford Motor Co. after a 50-day strike.

The Chrysler Corp. later settled along the same lines, with an additional provision aimed at satisfying the union's demand for parity of wages between workers in the United States and those in Canada, who are paid less.

Full scale negotiations between GM and the union resumed this week for the first time since Oct. 31.

Press Dispute Settled for 400

VANCOUVER (CP) — Pacific Press Ltd. and all four mechanical unions Friday reached agreement on a new wage contract for 400 production workers at the Sun and Province newspapers.

No details were immediately available. The agreement must be ratified by members of the typographical, stereotypers, pressmen and mailers unions.

Meanwhile, good progress was reported Friday in talks between the company and the Vancouver-New Westminster Newspaper Guild. The guild represents about 650 editorial, advertising and other office workers. Talks will continue Monday.

Shingle Strike

Director's Home Draws Picket

By GEORGE INGLIS

Striking shingle workers from the McCarter Shingle and Shakes Ltd. placed a short term picket at the home of Cecil Yates, 232 Superior Friday.

President of Local 3802 of the Shingle Weavers' Union, William C. Bell, said of the picket: "The boys just thought they would show the people in the neighborhood what kind of man was living there."

HE BRAGGED

"He has bragged to some of the boys he has worked around mills for 30 years and has never belonged to a union."

Mr. Bell said he did not know of his own knowledge about the picket of the Yates residence, since he was working at Smith Cedar Products Ltd. during the day, when the picket took place.

DIDN'T STAY

He did say, however, he had taken part in an impromptu demonstration picket at the McCarter plant on Songhees, as 40 shingle weavers from the Smith plant showed up at about 4:30, going directly from work.

"We didn't stay very long, however. It was too cold," he said.

They did stay long enough, however, to hurl several unfavorable comments at Mr. Yates, he said, who is one of two men who have come up from the U.S. to operate the plant on a reduced basis.

NEGOTIATIONS FAIL

The plant's 17 shingle weavers went out on strike Oct. 16 as a protest against the failure of about six weeks of negotiations to resolve the plant's first contract.

The plant president, William K. McCarter, said Mr. Yates is a director of the company who was "brought up here under contract."

PHOTO ATTEMPT

Mr. McCarter said two or three pickets showed up at the Yates residence and Mrs. Yates went out and snapped their pictures, asking them their names. "They didn't stay long after that," Mr. McCarter said.

Candidates Opt Out

Election Rally Not Supported

Four North Saanich council aspirants in the forthcoming election have declined an offer of the Sidney and North Saanich Chamber of Commerce to attend an all-candidates' meeting planned for Monday in the Peninsula Royal Canadian Legion branch hall on Mills Road.

In a prepared statement, reeve candidate A. B. Nash and council candidates T. C. Davis, H. J. Lake and H. A. Taylor said jointly:

"We wish to inform the electorate of North Saanich that because a clear statement of the policies to which we are committed has been sent to each elector, we believe that no useful purpose would be served by participating in the proposed meeting . . ."

The policy statement referred to, indicates the quartet is opposed to amalgamation with Sidney; favor a local advisory planning commission; oppose encroachment by the municipal government through regional boards; oppose school taxes coming from property assessment; favor curtailing municipal expenditure to reduce taxes, and oppose secret council discussions, except in special cases.

McCarthy 'Horse' In Kennedy Stable

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Governor John Connally of Texas, a house guest at the White House this week, said Friday he believes Senator Robert Kennedy (D-N.Y.) is using Senator Eugene McCarthy's peace candidacy to further his own presidential ambitions.

An old friend and political ally of President Johnson who stayed at the White House Wednesday and Thursday nights, Connally told newsmen in New York that if McCarthy is Kennedy's "stalking horse . . . he ought to say so."

EVIDENCE CITED

Connally cited as evidence the Minnesota Democrat's announced decision to enter presidential primaries in four and possibly six states next year as a candidate opposed to Johnson's Vietnam policies.

One result of McCarthy's campaign, the governor suggested, could be to draw together dissident Democratic factions as a power base for Kennedy. Of McCarthy, he said, "I don't think he is going to contribute anything to the unity of the Democratic Party."

AN ANSWER

Connally added he did not believe McCarthy would "have anything of significance to offer in terms of an answer to the Vietnam crisis."

McCarthy formally kicks off his challenge to Johnson with a speech in Chicago today before a group already on his side, if not in his camp: The Conference of Concerned Democrats.

Only Eight Came Out Of House

DOMINGUEZ, Calif. (LAT) — A grisly find was made Friday in the mystery house where nine members of a family closed themselves off from the world since last August: the body of an elderly woman believed to be the grandmother and matriarch of the family.

Sheriff's deputies broke into the mystery house and found the body of Mrs. Ella Holt. Officers, armed with court papers, went to the $35,000 two-story white home and broke in the door when there was no answer.

A spokesman for the sheriff's department said deputies found Mrs. Holt on the second floor in bed. She had been dead for two to four weeks, they said.

Dozens of questions remained to be answered: What was Mrs. Holt's death? What was the cause of death? What were her relatives doing closed inside the house?

The woman's son, Robert Holt, 36, his wife, Lynn, 33, their two daughters, Robbie, 6, and Sally, 9; Holt's brother, Ralph; his sister, Mrs. Ella Mae Johnson, and her two sons, Clinton, 17, and Andrew, 19, closed themselves within the house last April without explanation.

When sheriff's deputies investigated, Holt told them the family would not come out until "God instructs us to." But when the children did not start to school in September, authorities took action.

Arrest orders were issued for the Holts, and Thursday they appeared before Judge Harry Shaffer in municipal court. Holt refused to talk to newsmen but he explained to Judge Shaffer: "God shut us in."

The judge ordered the Holts bound over for trial Dec. 20. They were jailed when they could not post $2,000 bond each. The children were placed in the care of juvenile officers.

Members of the family had assured Judge Shaffer Thursday that the elder Mrs. Holt was all right.

GALE ISOLATES ISLAND

Ferries, Planes Cancel Trips

An unrelentingly vicious windstorm isolated Vancouver Island from the mainland Friday, smashed trees and poles, damaged homes and left at least 30 people stranded at Campbell River.

Power and telephone lines snapped under falling trees and hundreds of people were forced to alter their weekend plans when all ferry and airline services to the Lower Mainland were cancelled.

The winds, with velocity accelerating as the day went on, at times were close to hurricane force. At Victoria, they were gusting up to 69 miles an hour in the evening.

Worse Than Frieda

Monty Aldous, general manager of B.C. Ferries, said the storm had more serious effects on his service than did Typhoon Frieda in 1962. Friday's winds, while they did not reach the same speeds, lasted longer.

"Just about every place has had some problems," said a spokesman for B.C. Hydro, most of whose line crews had not yet had supper at 10 p.m.

The prospect for today: more winds, but probably of less intensity, as the storm moves northwest toward the Queen Charlotte Islands.

The advice for today: If you're travelling, check to make sure the ferries or planes are running. If there are any power lines down in your area, keep the children away from them.

The Mv. Queen of Vancouver, which left Swartz Bay at 6 p.m., was about a mile and a half from the Tsawwassen terminal when it had to turn around and head back to the island because another ferry was jammed in the slip.

Leasing Tax Hit

VANCOUVER (CP) — A "clarification" of British Columbia's 5 per cent sales tax on equipment rentals will add almost $1,000,000 a year to construction costs, an industry spokesman said Friday.

Bill Ellison, industrial relations manager for the Amalgamated Construction Association of B.C., made the statement while commenting on the change under the Social Services Tax Act.

The change, effective today, means that persons who rent equipment must pay the tax instead of firms which lease it. Originally the firms were required to pay the tax when the rental equipment was originally purchased.

Mr. Ellison said that rental firms usually get three times as much as the original value during its lifetime.

The consumer taxation branch in Victoria said in a directive that rent gained from leasing tangible personal property such as boats, machines and other equipment for more than 30 days is subject to the 5 per cent sales tax.

A spokesman for the branch said the new directive is not designed to produce new revenue for the government but rather "to standardize things."

Passengers Seasick

Passenger Bert Dodd, 250

Douglas, said the vessel created and groaned in the rough seas. The lavatories were crowded with people suffering seasickness and the floor of the restaurant was littered with broken glass, spilled cutlery and sugar.

The last Air Canada flight to Victoria left Vancouver at 5:35 p.m. Fierce turbulence forced cancellation of remaining evening flights.

The government ferry authority cancelled its sailings from all mainland and island ports, including the Gulf Islands, shortly after 6 p.m.

A B.C. Ferries spokesman said there were "good" loads but the vessels weren't at capacity because the bad weather, which started about noon, discouraged many people from travelling.

A man was injured when he drove into a downed tree at Campbell River. St. Joseph's Hospital in Victoria treated three people who came to its emergency ward with sand or dust in their eyes.

Almost every community on Vancouver Island reported sporadic power outages, but in some areas the lights were off most of the night.

About 30 high school children and several adults were unable to return to Quadra Island, off Campbell River, when high seas and 75-mile-an-hour winds prevented the ferry.

The governor also said Alaska representatives would be going to Europe in the near future to look at ferries, with a view to purchasing one to augment the present fleet of three.

The state will start direct ferry service between Ketchikan and Seattle Dec. 14, with a 10:15 a.m. departure from Ketchikan by the Matanuska.

George MacCannahan, state commissioner of public works, said the initial sailing from Seattle to Ketchikan is already nearly completely booked.

In other developments, Hickel also disclosed:

• Initial service between Ketchikan and Puget Sound will involve one round trip weekly.

• The state plans to seek federal interstate highway

Ottawa Chasing U.S. Ship Work

OTTAWA (CP) — The government is actively pursuing contracts for Canadian shipyards in the United States, Industry Minister Drury said Friday.

But he added that the U.S. government shows "some reticence" to have the ships built in Canada.

Mr. Drury was replying in the Commons to George Chatterton (PC-Esquimalt-Saanich), who asked whether the government is considering any measures to relieve a critical situation in West Coast shipyards.

Mr. Drury said a scheme of "transitional arrangements", agreed on two years ago by the federal government and the ship construction industry, is continuing.

Canoeist Saved In Atlantic

MOSCOW (UPI) — A Soviet merchant ship has rescued British adventurer Francis Breton in a canoe in the Atlantic, Ivestia said Friday.

He was picked up floating 8-0.5 near the Canary Islands after 100 days of a solo crossing from Expe 67.

New Ferry Needed

Alaska Run Won't Pause

The Washington-Alaska ferry service will be on a year-round basis as soon as the 49th state can acquire another ferry boat, Governor Walter Hickel told the Colonist by telephone Friday.

"We may have to return the Matanuska to the regular run in the summer," he said, "but as soon as we can find another ferry we intend to operate permanently on a weekly basis, the year round."

Hickel said he is definitely considering Bellingham as a permanent southern terminus for the run from Alaska to Puget sound — in answer to a strong bid made by a Bellingham group.

FERRY SEARCH

The governor also said Alaska representatives would be going to Europe in the near future to look at ferries, with a view to purchasing one to augment the present fleet of three.

The state will start direct ferry service between Ketchikan and Seattle Dec. 14, with a 10:15 a.m. departure from Ketchikan by the Matanuska.

George MacCannahan, state commissioner of public works, said the initial sailing from Seattle to Ketchikan is already nearly completely booked.

In other developments, Hickel also disclosed:

• Initial service between Ketchikan and Puget Sound will involve one round trip weekly.

One-Punch Mosca Wins Again

So Endeth the Fist Lesson

OTTAWA (CP) — Angelo Mosca, 270-pound tackle with Hamilton Tiger-Cats, flattened Ottawa centre Jerry Selinger Friday in a one-punch fight outside the Hamilton dressing room. (See also Page 18)

Selinger, who tips the scales at 255 for the Rough Riders, was waiting in his car as Mosca came out of the dressing room and headed for the practice field a few yards away.

He said something to Mosca — believed to be the result of some head-knocking when the two teams met in the Eastern Football Conference final — and Mosca turned and hit Selinger on the side of the head with a solid right.

Selinger hit the ground and that was the fight.

"He called me a big . . .," said Mosca, "so I flattened him. He was mad about what I did to him in the last game."

Hamilton won the second game of the two-game, total-points EFC final 26-0 and Mosca admitted he elbowed Selinger during the game.

"Well I didn't like what they were doing to Joe Zuger (Hamilton quarterback) so I hit Selinger with an elbow. I think maybe I cut him around the lips for a couple of stitches."

After the fight Friday — one of the biggest surprises on the eve of today's Grey Cup — Mosca delivered a short lecture to Selinger as he lay on the ground.

"I told him he shouldn't

carry a feud off the football field," said Mosca. "If he wants to do something, do it on the field. But once the game's over, forget it. I never carry a feud off the field."

"A guy shouldn't carry grudges away from the game. At least if they do, they should keep quiet and settle their scores on the field."

"Even after that Grey Cup game in Vancouver — you know, the Willie Fleming thing — well the Vancouver guys wouldn't shake my hand after the game, and they wouldn't talk to me afterwards."

"That's okay with me — who needs them. But they didn't try to carry on the feud off the field."

Penny Rise Means Disaster

Milk prices are expected to increase a penny a quart on the heels of a similar increase in Vancouver — another increase on the cost of a basic commodity.

To a happy, working family, the increase is an aggravation, but to a family toughing out the days on the edge of subject poverty, it is a disaster.

With Christmas near and most families spending freely,

Victoria's needy are wondering how to stretch a few dollars even further.

Many sympathetic Victorians' Friday decided to put their less fortunate neighbors on their Christmas list, and in the most generous outpouring so far this year put more than $900 into the Colonist 500 Fund.

The fund now stands at $3,454.02 — The highest Dec. 1 total on record, nearly $500

ahead of 1965, and $850 ahead of 1966.

In both of those years, cheques were finally made out to the 500 names on the Colonist's Christmas list for $30. So far, the fund, if split up now would have enough in it to give each family $6.90.

Many clubs and organizations are getting plans underway to help swell the fund.

The Victoria Gun Club will stage its Colonist 500 Fund

turkey shoot on its Albert Head range off Metchoin Road, Dec. 16 and 17.

A club official said Friday the shoot resulted in a $300-boost to last year's fund, but he hopes to do even better this year.

Donations may be mailed or brought in to The Daily Colonist, 2631 Douglas, or to Avis Rent-A-Car, 800 Douglas. Latest donations are listed on Page 2.

It's Mr. Smith Soon

Army Loses Private Battle

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The U.S. Army surrendered Friday to Pte. Joe Allen Smith, who spent 18 months of his tour of duty at home awaiting orders, and agreed to discharge him next week.

The military announced its capitulation the same moment as Smith's brigade of lawyers marched into federal court seeking a writ of habeas corpus on grounds the private was being held in the army illegally.

Smith, 23, Brownsville, Calif., spent most of his two-year tour at home working as a logger awaiting new transfer orders. When his two years were up, he notified the brass he wanted out.

They put him back in uniform in June.

The private, drafted in June, 1965, went on a 30-day leave in December, 1965, expecting to go to southeast Asia. A telegram from the army told him to await new orders.

The orders never came. Smith, tired of fishing and hunting, got a job as a logger earning about $130 a week. His wife drew an army allotment of $95.20 a month.

Smith sought his discharge when his two-year duty had terminated.

"Should Have Been Admiral By Now"

DENVER (UPI) — Fred R. Linsenmaier enlisted in the navy in 1918 and then went home to await his orders to report for duty "on 24 hours notice."

He said Friday he has been waiting ever since.

Linsenmaier, now 70, said after he took his oath the recruiter instructed him to go home where he would receive orders.

"They weren't sending anyone to camps then because of the Spanish influenza," Linsenmaier said.

He still was waiting three months later when the armistice came so he thought he had better check. Linsenmaier, who now operates a Denver bakery supply business, said he went back and was told he had enlisted for six years.

He waited 40 more years until 1958 when he decided it was time to check again. Linsenmaier said he wrote the navy and told them he thought he "should re-enlist or get a discharge."

The navy replied, asking him what ship he had been on and his service number. Linsenmaier, who had never been on a ship or received a service number, decided to forget the whole thing.

Linsenmaier, who signed up for $13 a month when he enlisted 49 years ago, said he wasn't worried about the money.

Actually, the length of time I've been in the navy I should be an admiral," he said. Asked why he enlisted, Linsenmaier replied: "I didn't want to be drafted."

Gale Isolates Island

Campbell River throughout the afternoon, and the storm was described by many as the worst in years.

Tyee Plaza shopping centre was backloaded during Friday afternoon when huge seas swept over the breakwater on Discovery Crescent and flooded the road and shopping entrance with waves up to a foot high.

All stores in one block downtown were without power during the 5 p.m. rush hour.

A tree was blown down to General Hill. Arne Axel of Gold River, drove into it and was admitted to hospital but a spokesman said his injuries were slight.

HEAVY RAIN

More than one and one half inches of rain fell in Port Alberni throughout the late afternoon and night.

Several streets were flooded and small lakes played havoc with cars.

The coast guard lifeboat at Cape Beale, at the mouth of the Alberni Canal, was called out in the afternoon to help an unidentified, 30-foot fishing boat which made a call for help after developing engine trouble.

TOWED IN

The boat and its crew were towed in safely.

However, the lifeboat had to make a quick search for one crew member in a small skiff who had gone for aid. He and the skiff were found within a few minutes, partly obscured by huge waves.

Courtenay was blacked out for 20 minutes during the afternoon and several surrounding areas without power for six hours Friday night.

INES DOWN

Telephone lines were down at Oyster River and Comox.

At Cape St. James, on the south end of the Queen Charlottes, winds were recorded at more than 83 miles an hour. In Victoria, the average windspeed at 8:30 p.m. Friday was 52.

Elsewhere: Greater Victoria—B.C. Hydro had 40 men in 11 trucks repairing downed lines. B.C. Telephone had the same problem. The airport, Swartz Bay ferry terminal, Esquimalt, Metcheson, Colwood, William Head and

Rocky Point areas had the most serious power failures.

In the Metcheson district, residents were in the dark for about three hours. In Saanich, powerlines were cut at six of seven locations. In Esquimalt, the police were flooded with similar telephone calls.

In the city itself, the calls were less frequent. One of the gusts swept the roof right off a garage at the R. D. Ward residence, 887 Bank. There was no estimate of damage.

The heavy seas forced the navy to cancel a reserve training cruise of the gate vessels Porte de la Reine and Porte Quebec. They were to have sailed at 8 p.m. Friday for a weekend trip to Seattle.

Tofino — Hydro crews were working on power lines Friday night as lights in the village flickered intermittently during the afternoon and night.

Ucluelet — Power was off six hours. Winds gusted to 80 miles an hour shortly after 3 p.m. in the height of the storm on the West Coast. Fishermen praised the new boat basin, saying several boats would have been smashed without its protection.

Cowichan Valley—Cobble Hill reported a gust at between 50 and 60 miles an hour.

Some trees were brought down on roads; traffic was blocked for a while on Cherry Creek Road but the valley escaped relatively unscathed.

Nanaimo — Westerly and Breakwater subdivisions were without power for some time. At Cassidy, power was cut for an hour after branches fell across the Ladysmith-Nanaimo

Frozen Nutcracker Runs Play Battle

Story and Photos
By AGNES FLETT

COMOX—T33 jets screamed overhead at close to 100 miles an hour, providing air support to a large Voyager helicopter which was airlifting in troops to Forbidden Plateau.

The scene was set for Operation Nutcracker, involving almost 300 men from CFB Comox for four days this week.

With below-freezing temperatures and more than a foot of snow covering the higher reaches, the exercise was survival training as well as simulated battle conditions.

The men involved were from A and C Company, First Battalion, Queen's Own Regiment, which is soon to leave for Norway and NATO's mobile force training in the Arctic.

Some of the crack troops marched the 30 miles overland, through the mountains, sleeping out in the snow en route.

Lieutenant Ed Peterson, of Victoria, said he didn't mind sleeping in the snow during the exercise, but the worst part was having to shave in the cold, sometimes with cold water.

Ed shaves in snow

One group, code-named Ironica, was airlifted in the Voyager helicopter (brought from Edmonton) to the higher slopes.

Another, code-named Erotica, waited down below, hidden in hollows and behind trees.

As sections of men, led by NOCs, moved forward to take pre-arranged positions on the map, the defending soldiers snatched them.

The helicopter buzzed in, evacuating "wounded", and bringing in "heavy weapons", while two T33s flashed in at tree-top level, providing covering fire.

The pilots' job was extremely hazardous as besides trees and mountains to watch, the jets had to fly beneath low fog.

There were skirmishes and hand-to-hand combat before "prisoners" were taken, frisked and interrogated.

"The exercise has been a new experience for some of the younger soldiers, and for us all, it has been good training," said Major R. E. Donnelly, who was in charge.

The freezing weather, snow and rough terrain was also a new experience for some of the members of the Press party which was flown in to cover the exercise.

There had been little prior warning and at the conclusion, someone said, "It's obvious I could do with the hardening up."

Election Issues

Chemainus Needs Water

CHEMAINUS — For the last time in the current municipal election campaign the three North Cowichan reeve candidates crossed swords and councillor candidates presented their platforms at an all-candidate meeting.

Reeve candidate Claude Green pledged he would re-establish harmony in local politics, and he proposed the Chemainus River as a good water supply for the Chemainus area, which was pressed last summer for good quality water.

He charged garbage disposal dumps in the area are revolting, and consideration should be given by future council to use incinerators or sanitary land fill methods.

Reeve Donald Morton countered Mr. Green's disharmony claim. He said never before has the co-operation between North Cowichan and the city of Duncan been so good.

"When I became reeve I inherited disharmony, but it does not exist here today."

He said no bylaw was ever defeated in the northern part of the municipality, and he claimed bylaw defeats in the southern portion occurred because of lack of a strong ratepayers' group.

He said while Chemainus will have a more satisfactory water supply from Weddell's Lake next year, experts will explore other possible sources.

Reeve candidate Margaret Whittaker said the Chemainus River as a future Chemainus water supply would be out of the question, "Because last fall there was not even enough water in the river for the salmon to come up, and fishermen officials were quite worried."

She said a safe road should be provided for the children to go to the Fuller's Lake Arena and she put in a plug for the farmers who, she claimed, do not receive enough services for the high taxes they have to pay.

Regional Setup Can Help Area

Jaycees Lose Project

SHAWNIGAN LAKE — "I feel that if the Cowichan Valley regional district is properly handled, it can do a lot for the taxpayers."

Frank Martin, of Shawnigan Lake, who is seeking election as a director of the board, has served for an interim period since September as the Shawnigan Lake representative.

Now, after finding out what the regional district can do for the Valley, he wants to be permanently elected to the board for a two-year term.

'Work for Us'

Mr. Martin said, "The operation of the Cowichan Valley regional district needs a co-operative spirit from the people. I feel we can make it work for us."

"I am a taxpayer, and I want to see all taxpayers get the most out of it for the least amount of money."

Mr. Martin, a teacher and librarian at Mill Bay's Brentwood College, for almost seven years, is presently vice-chairman of the South Cowichan Recreation Commission, and a committee member of the Cobble Hill parents' organization for Scouts and Guides.

School Trustee

Prior to coming to Shawnigan Lake, Mr. Martin operated a summer resort in the interior at Greenwood, where he was chairman of the school board for two of his four years as a school board trustee.

A graduate in agriculture, he received his Bachelor of Science degree at UBC.

Mr. Martin then spent a year in Europe studying agriculture and agricultural education, in 1956.

England

He visited several European colleges and made a study of agricultural colleges in England.

Mr. Martin is married and has two children, Stephen, 8, and Linda, 4.

Mr. Martin's opponent in the Dec. 9 election is an electrical consulting engineer, Dave Laverock, of Renfrew Road, Shawnigan Lake.

Historic

His interest in the future expansion and development of Shawnigan Lake stems almost from the time his parents settled on Renfrew Road in 1883.

Mr. Laverock intends to apply some of his considerable knowledge and ability, gained through world-wide travel, to the groundwork required in establishing an efficient regional district.

"I also have a strong interest in regional districts in their relation to democratic government."

Elderly People

One of his first considerations will be the tax load, because many taxpayers are retired senior citizens on small pensions.

Both Mr. Laverock and Mr. Martin will be speakers at an all-candidate meeting Monday night at the George Bonner Junior Secondary School.

The meeting, which starts at 8 p.m., is being sponsored by the South Cowichan Taxpayers' Association.

Barsby's Promise

'Streamline City Hall'

NANAIMO—Mayor-elect candidate Ted Barsby said if he is elected he will clarify the position of the chief administrative officer of Nanaimo, and will formulate a new policy which will eliminate time wasted on minor items of city business.

"The city clerk cannot be a clerk and comptroller at the same time. This is asking too much of one man."

"He must deal basically with vital matters of civic administration, including reorganization of personnel so that all civic employees are giving our citizens maximum service," he said.

"There is entirely too much time spent on petty matters which should be handled at a lower administrative level in accordance with council policy."

"Council sets policy and the staff carries that policy out. While it is not as simple as it sounds, it surely can be done to the benefit of all concerned," said Mr. Barsby.

Everything Secret

Visitors Shown New Slabbers

CHEMAINUS — Officials of MacMillan Bloedel sawmill division showed and explained two recently-installed chipper slabbers to community leaders and newsmen during a mill tour.

Still considered an industrial secret, the chipper slabber at one of the head rigs, and one at an edger saw, were designed and developed by company engineers. Chemainus played an important role.

Local 1-80 vice-president Fernie Viala said "We appreciate the fact that technical changes are coming into industry, and certainly the IWA is not standing in the way of progress."

"The fact that 12 men are being displaced is a matter of great concern to us, in view of the fact that this new type of equipment can be applied to nearly all head rigs, not only in the Chemainus sawmill but also in plants at the coast and the interior, which would mean the displacement of hundreds of men."

Mill manager Harry Shorter explained the new equipment eliminates the handling of slabs by producing chips while the saw is making the first cut of marketable lumber.

The new machines also cut out a certain amount of less valuable sawdust.

The chipper slabbers, believed to be the first in the world, were developed at a capital cost of $250,000.

Main components of the chipper slabber are rotating knives which tear the slab into chips as soon as it has passed the circular saw of the headrig.

Mr. Shorter said about 12 sawmill workers will be affected by the new equipment.

Another company official added, "The change of jobs does not mean people out the door."

"Our maintenance crew is forever increasing because of the technical changes."

The company expects to install two more chipper slabbers elsewhere in the Chemainus sawmill in late 1968.

Mr. Viala said provision must be made in 1968 talks for the retraining of men affected by this change and other changes in manufacturing methods.

He said "At the present time, management has absolutely no responsibility to look after those men who will be replaced."

"We must also be concerned about those who will come into the work force."

On the tour, mill manager Shorter said his company has spent $11,500,000 on pollution control since 1946.

"We are spending a lot of money in taking our responsibility seriously."

What Are They Looking At?

Photographer Klaus Muentner couldn't show you the answer to that question, because of the secrecy of the new machinery. But mill officials would allow a shot of visitors Ed Mankelov and Reeve Donald Morton listening to an explanation from Wilfred Warden.

Family Life Aid Open for Cases

NANAIMO — A first ceremony signaled a new community service for Nanaimo district.

Reverend Robert Gracey, president, opened the offices of Nanaimo Family Life Association Friday afternoon.

Among the 45 people present were MLA Dave Stupich and Mayor Pete Mallico.

The mayor presented the association with a cheque for $250 on behalf of the city.

Mr. Stupich, in a few words in closing the ceremony, said "This is a wonderful beginning. I'm satisfied it will prove its worth to the citizens of Nanaimo."

Mr. Gracey, in a short speech, said, "Much work, planning and discussion has gone into the association."

"This project is unique in many ways," he continued. "It will provide counselling and education, covering all aspects of family life."

"A marital conflict need not be the end of a marriage and home," he said.

The offices will be open until 9 p.m. six days a week, with counsellors at all times.

Office times are 10 a.m. to 1 p.m., 2 p.m. to 5 p.m., and 6 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Many persons frequently can be of more help than professionals, where communication has proven difficult.

The offices at 195 Commercial Street were chosen specifically so that they would be where the most people congregated naturally.

Island Scene

Well-known Tofino resident and long-time Colonist correspondent for the west coast, Mrs. Susan McConnell Bird, had a narrow escape Friday afternoon at the height of the storm. She was washing her dishes in the kitchen when the top pane in a six-panel frame glass window was blown in. The glass shattered into a thousand pieces, she was not cut. Mrs. Bird, who is having her living room redecorated, said soot from the closed-off chimney also blew through the living room and kitchen, up to an inch deep in places. Mrs. Leona Budden is a Lake Cowichan school trustee.

Desperate Scramble for Rescue Fails

Shot from Friend's Rifle Kills Young Deer Hunter

A 19-year-old Victoria hunter, seeing his friend dying of a bullet wound Thursday, ran a desperate, nightmarish obstacle course to get help.

Dead is Robert Goodrow, 19, of 3586 Calumet. After a shot from his rifle felled his friend, Gerry Louden, 1579 Sooria Road, ran for help at breakneck speed through heavy timberland, added his car over an embankment, ran another mile to the nearest house and smashed his way in with his fists to reach a phone. The accident occurred about 1 p.m. in the Durrance Lake area, and for the next two hours Gerry worked frantically to help his friend.

He ran half a mile uphill from the death scene to his car, parked on the summit of Ricky's Road, before he had driven 1,000 feet, the car slid into the ditch. He abandoned it and began running again. Another mile along was the home of Vernon Harknett, on Durrance Road, but he found it empty and locked.

In his frantic efforts to reach the telephone, he broke glass in both front and rear doors, and a side window, before getting in. He called Saanich police. "The place was covered with blood," Mr. Harknett said later. "He had cut himself very badly, and glass was all over everywhere." Mr. Harknett added, "The home had been locked up while the family was away for the day."

After police arrived at the road summit, Gerry attempted to lead them to the shooting scene, but couldn't find his way. A police tracking dog was called in, but a policeman found the body before the dog was taken into the bush.

Gerry was taken by ambulance to hospital to have his hands treated. He was later released, after receiving several stitches, and was placed under observation. At 5 p.m., wind-driven rain was biting into the faces of the small group of men huddled around the body in the forest. STALKING DEER

Four hours earlier, Robert Goodrow had been stalking deer with Gerry Louden between Ricky's Road and Langford Arm, five miles west of Rudy's Pet Park. He was struck in the chest by a .303-calibre bullet from his friend's rifle. Just how it happened was not immediately known.

It was the first fatal hunting accident this season in the lower Vancouver Island area. Several youths had been hunting in the area for several hours before the shooting. Gerry's actions from the time of the shooting were related by his father, Peter Louden. Saanich police, Sidney RCMP, Victoria RCMP, Langford Volunteer Ambulance crewmen hurried to the scene in heavy timberland.

After searching about two hours, police located the body near the foot of a 200-foot embankment.

It was a wet, rough-and-tumble search through the dense underbrush, over moss-covered boulders and up and down steep banks. Darkness came fast.

There were five men from the Langford ambulance and four policemen searching. Gerry Louden was an experienced hunter, his father said.

Three years ago he began packing a gun in the bush under the guidance of an expert hunter and close family friend, Mr. Louden said.

He had been taught everything, he said, and it was a good job. "Aid. Carney Reynolds told that he was allowed that year to go hunting on his own."

Both Gerry and Robert had hunted together several times before. Gerry attends the Institute of Adult Studies.

During Thursday's outing he had been dressed in all-orange-colored clothing, his father said. Robert Goodrow was wearing dark clothing and an orange cap.

The victim, who graduated from Victoria high school last June, had been employed as a sales clerk at Capital Inn.

He had also attended Landon junior high school. He is survived by his mother, Joyce, at home; and a sister, Shirley, in Vancouver.

Sidney coroner D. G. Ashby said an inquest would be held.

Water Plan Opens Gate

NORTH COWICHAN — The new $515,000 south-end water system in the municipality will pave the way for new major housing developments.

Now practically completed, the new system which included two large storage tanks and pump houses, was inspected Thursday by North Cowichan municipal officials.

Municipal clerk A. Vande Casteyen remarked during the tour that inquiries about new subdivisions were made when construction of the water system became certain.

The new system will serve 500 households, including 150 which were connected to existing systems at Somers and Maple Bay.

The new system already brings water to about 400 homes. Present output is 150,000 gallons a day.

The system can serve 1,000 households at maximum capacity. Two new wells are contemplated and the well now being used will serve as a standby after the new wells have been constructed.

The municipality's consulting engineer Harold Sturrock, who designed the system, said "We did a lot of test drilling and the two geological consultants who worked with us indicated we could drill two more wells with a capacity of 1,000 gallons a minute each."

The work on the system was carried out by three different concerns: Jenkins Bros. of Parksville laid about 20 miles of pipe; G. H. Wheaton of Victoria built two massive storage tanks, one holding 100,000 gallons and the other 40,000 gallons; and municipal public works crews, under supervisor Perry Ross, erected the pump houses.

Work started in the beginning of July and the last work is now being completed.

North Cowichan Reeve Donald Morton said "We shall have three wells this summer."

He added that extensions will not be considered until later next year after the system has been working for some time.

The system is strengthened by a booster pump at Indian and Maple Bay Roads. An old storage tank at Maple Bay is being kept as a standby after the new 40,000-gallon tank was constructed for that area.

The 100,000-gallon tank is located in the Slinner and Cassino Road district of the municipality.

Citizens At Work

CAMPBELL RIVER — Two conservation-conscious hunters, Sidney and Ronald Carnegie, recently performed a citizen's arrest.

The brothers, of Campbell River, said they saw a hunter shoot a trumpeter swan in the Ucona Valley, near Gold River.

They effected a citizen's arrest and brought the man to RCMP at Gold River and reported the matter.

Gordon Robert Bogan, 24, of Gold River, will appear in Campbell River magistrate's court Dec. 6 on a charge under the Migratory Birds Act.

On Nov. 19, Louis Schaff, 19, of Gold River appeared in magistrate's court before provincial magistrate R. L. Halsey-Brown and was fined $250 for shooting a trumpeter swan at Antler Lake, also near Gold River.

Raid on Garbage Wasn't Healthy

PORT ALBERNI — Clubs, organizations and individuals who wish to submit names to be included on the Salvation Army's Christmas hamper list must do so before Dec. 8.

Captain F. J. Holzman of the Salvation Army said meetings have been held to process the names received, and to try to avoid duplication so that all those in real need can be included on the list.

Christmas cheer kettles will be on the street this weekend. No house-to-house canvases will be made other than the selling of Christmas editions of the War Cry.

LAKE COWICHAN — Mrs. Mildred Child, chairman of the Lake Cowichan village council, has been given a special honor from Ottawa — a medalion from the department of the Secretary of State. It reads: "On the occasion of the 100th anniversary of the Confederation of Canada, the centennial medal is conferred on Mrs. Mildred Child in recognition of valuable services to the nation." She has been council for 15 years.

PORT ALBERNI — Funeral services will be held at 3 p.m. today for Mrs. Karen Sofie Lovsund, of 205 Melrose, who died in her home Wednesday night. Born in Finland 57 years ago, Mrs. Lovsund leaves her husband Leo, a son Ruben and one grandchild, all of Port Alberni. She had been ill for some time.

Beacon Hill Reply Negative

PORT ALBERNI — Efforts by Mayor Hammer to have the navy frigate Beacon Hill, now decommissioned, given to the community as a possible museum, have been scuttled by federal economists.

The mayor wrote to the prime minister, explaining how fond the people of the Alberni had grown of the Beacon Hill and her officers and crew, who often entertained children and adults alike on their visits here.

Rather than scrap the gallant ship, why not ask the minister of defence to give consideration to the request that the ship be anchored here and possibly turned into a marine and regular museum and a tourist attraction.

After hopeful signs the blow fell... such items as navy ships must be declared to the War Assets Disposal Corporation.

There is a good market for frigates, and a good price offered from a prospective buyer.

But Mr. Hammer hasn't given up. He has written to MP Tom Barnett to see what a good old frigate is going for these days, in the hope some public-spirited group may want to help.

GALE ISOLATES ISLANDERS

Ferries, Planes Cancel Trips

An unrelentingly vicious windstorm isolated Vancouver Island from the mainland Friday, smashed trees and poles, damaged homes and left at least 30 people stranded at Campbell River.

Power and telephone lines snapped under falling trees and hundreds of people were forced to alter their weekend plans when all ferry and airline services to the Lower Mainland were cancelled.

The winds, with velocity accelerating as the day went on, at times were close to hurricane force. At Victoria, they were gusting up to 69 miles an hour in the evening.

Worse Than Frieda

Monty Aldous, general manager of B.C. Ferries, said the storm had more serious effects on his service than did Typhoon Frieda in 1962. Friday's winds, while they did not reach the same speeds, lasted longer.

"Just about every place has had some problems," said a spokesman for B.C. Hydro, most of whose line crews had not yet had supper at 10 p.m.

The prospect for today: more winds, but probably of less intensity, as the storm moves northwest toward the Queen Charlotte Islands.

The advice for today: If you're travelling, check to make sure the ferries or planes are running. If there are any power lines down in your area, keep the children away from them.

The Mv. Queen of Vancouver, which left Swartz Bay at 6 p.m., was about a mile and a half from the Tsawwassen terminal when it had to turn around and head back to the Island because another ferry was jammed in the slip. (See Page 11.)

Leasing Tax Alters

VANCOUVER (CP) — A "clarification" of British Columbia's 5 per cent sales tax on equipment rentals will add almost $1,000,000 a year to construction costs, an industry spokesman said Friday.

Bill Ellison, industrial relations manager for the Amalgamated Construction Association of B.C., made the statement while commenting on the change under the Social Services Tax Act.

The change, effective today, means that persons who rent equipment must pay the tax instead of firms which lease it. Originally the firms were required to pay the tax when the rental equipment was originally purchased.

Mr. Ellison said that rental firms usually get three times an item's original value during its lifetime.

The consumer taxation branch in Victoria said in a directive that rent gained from leasing tangible personal property such as boats, machines and other equipment for more than 30 days is subject to the 5 per cent sales tax.

A spokesman for the branch said the new directive is not designed to produce new revenue for the government but rather "to standardize things."

Passengers Seasick

Passenger Bert Dodd, 250 Douglas, said the vessel creaked and groaned in the rough seas.

The lavatories were crowded with people suffering seasickness and the floor of the restaurant was littered with broken glass, spilled cutlery and sugar.

The last Air Canada flight to Victoria left Vancouver at 5:35 p.m. Fierce turbulence forced cancellation of remaining evening flights.

The government ferry authority cancelled its sailings from all mainland and Island ports, including the Gulf Islands, shortly after 6 p.m.

A B.C. Ferries spokesman said there were "good" loads but the vessels weren't at capacity because the bad weather which started about noon, discouraged many people from travelling.

A man was injured when he drove into a downed tree at Campbell River. St. Joseph's Hospital in Victoria treated three people who came to its emergency ward with sand or dust in their eyes.

Almost every community on Vancouver Island reported sporadic power outages, but in some areas the lights were off most of the night.

About 30 high school children and several adults were unable to return to Quadra Island, off Campbell River, when high seas and 75-mile-an-hour winds prevented the ferry Quadra Queen from running.

The students, who came across each day for school, stayed with relatives and friends in Campbell River, while some adults checked in at hotels.

Quadra Island, with a population of about 500, was without power Friday night. Strong winds and rain lashed the island.

Army Loses Private Battle

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The U.S. Army surrendered Friday to Pte. Joe Allen Smith, who spent 18 months of his tour of duty at home awaiting orders, and agreed to discharge him next week.

The military announced its capitulation the same moment as Smith's brigade of lawyers marched into federal court seeking a writ of habeas corpus on grounds the private was being held in the army illegally.

Smith, 23, Brownsville, Calif., spent most of his two-year tour at home working as a logger awaiting new transfer orders. When his two years were up, he notified the brass he wanted out.

They put him back in uniform in June. The private, drafted in June, 1965, went on a 30-day leave in December, 1965, expecting to go to southeast Asia. A telegram from the army told him to await new orders.

The orders never came. Smith, tired of fishing and hunting, got a job as a logger earning about $130 a week. His wife drew an army allotment of $85.20 a month.

Smith sought his discharge when his two-year duty had terminated.

Ottawa Chasing U.S. Ship Work

OTTAWA (CP) — The government is actively pursuing contracts for Canadian shipyards in the United States, Industry Minister Drury assured a West Coast MP Friday.

But he added that the U.S. government shows "some reluctance" to have the ships built in Canada.

Mr. Drury was replying in the Commons to George Chatterton (PC-Esquimalt-Saanich), who asked whether the government is considering any measures to relieve a critical situation in West Coast shipyards.

Mr. Drury said a scheme of "transitional arrangements", agreed on two years ago by the federal government and the ship construction industry, is continuing.

Canoeist Saved In Atlantic

MOSCOW (UPI) — A Soviet merchant ship has rescued British adventurer Francis Breton in a canoe in the Atlantic, Ivestia said Friday.

He was picked up flashing S-O-S near the Canary Islands after 100 days of a solo crossing from Expo 67.

New Ferry Needed

Alaska Run Won't Pause

The Washington-Alaska ferry service will be on a year-round basis as soon as the 49th state can acquire another ferry boat, Governor Walter Hickel told the Colonist by telephone Friday.

"We may have to return the Matanuska to the regular run in the summer," he said, "but as soon as we can find another ferry we intend to operate permanently on a weekly basis, the year round."

Hickel said he is definitely considering Bellingham as a permanent southern terminus for the run from Alaska to Puget Sound — in answer to a strong bid made by a Bellingham group.

The state will start direct ferry service between Ketchikan and Seattle Dec. 14, with a 10:15 a.m. departure from Ketchikan by the Matanuska.

NEARLY BOOKED

George MacClanahan, state commissioner of public works, said the initial sailing from Seattle to Ketchikan is already nearly completely booked.

In other developments, Hickel also disclosed:

● Initial service between Ketchikan and Puget Sound will involve one round trip weekly.

● The state plans to seek federal interstate highway

One-Punch Mosca Wins Again

So Endeth the Fist Lesson

OTTAWA (CP) — Angelo Mosca, 270-pound tackle with Hamilton Tiger-Cats, flattened Ottawa centre Jerry Selinger Friday in a one-punch fight outside the Hamilton dressing room. (See also Page 18)

Selinger, who tips the scales at 235 for the Rough Riders, was waiting in his car as Mosca came out of the dressing room and headed for the practice field a few yards away.

He said something to Mosca — believed to be the result of some head-knocking when the two teams met in the Eastern Football Conference final — and Mosca turned and hit Selinger on the side of the head with a solid right.

Selinger hit the ground and that was the fight.

"He called me a big," said Mosca, "so I flattened him. He was mad about what I did to him in the last game."

Hamilton won the second game of the two-game, total-points EFC final 26-0 and Mosca admitted he elbowed Selinger during the game.

"Well I didn't like what they were doing to Joe Zuger (Hamilton quarterback) so I hit Selinger with an elbow. I think maybe I cut him around the lips for a couple of stitches."

After the fight Friday — one of the biggest surprises on the eve of today's Grey Cup — Mosca delivered a short lecture to Selinger as he lay on the ground.

"I told him he shouldn't

carry a feud off the football field," said Mosca. "If he wants to do something, do it on the field. But once the game's over, forget it. I never carry a feud off the field."

"A guy shouldn't carry grudges away from the game. At least if they do, they should keep quiet and settle their scores on the field."

"Even after that Grey Cup game in Vancouver — you know, the Willie Fleming thing — well the Vancouver guys wouldn't shake my hand after the game, and they wouldn't talk to me afterwards."

"That's okay with me — who needs them. But they didn't try to carry on the feud off the field."

Penny Rise Means Disaster

Milk prices are expected to increase a penny a quart on the heels of a similar increase in Vancouver — another increase on the cost of a basic commodity.

To a happy, working family, the increase is an aggravation, but to a family toughing out the days on the edge of abject poverty, it is a disaster.

With Christmas near and most families spending freely,

Victoria's needy are wondering how to stretch a few dollars even further.

Many sympathetic Victorians Friday decided to put their less fortunate neighbors on their Christmas list, and in the most generous outpouring so far this year put more than $900 into the Colonist 500 Fund.

The fund now stands at $3,454.02 — The highest Dec. 1 total on record, nearly $500

ahead of 1965, and $850 ahead of 1966.

In both of those years, cheques were finally made out to the 500 names on the Colonist's Christmas list for $30. So far, the fund, if split up now would have enough in it to give each family $6.90.

Many clubs and organizations are getting plans underway to help swell the fund. The Victoria Gun Club will stage its Colonist 500 Fund turkey shoot on its Albert Head range off Metchoin Road, Dec. 16 and 17.

A club official said Friday the shoot resulted in a $300 boost to last year's fund, but he hopes to do even better this year.

Donations may be mailed or brought in to The Daily Colonist, 2631 Douglas, or to Avis Rent-A-Car, 800 Douglas. Latest donations are listed on Page 2.
